"Crime has risen rapidly"

"... because of moral and family breakdowns"

Bates tells of Patty, SLA and bus 'nap cases

"A breakdown in morality and changes in the basic family structure" were cited yesterday as the principal reasons for the epidemic spread of crime in the past decade.

Charles Bates, who served as an investigator and regional bureau chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation for 36 years before his retirement earlier this year, told a Pleasanton Chamber of Commerce audience that the reasons behind some criminal acts are almost unfathomable.

The taciturn former San Francisco FBI bureau chief became internationally known through leading the investigative effort in the Patty Hearst - Symbionese Liberation Army and Chowchilla bus kidnap cases.

During his tenure, Bates and his investigative staff were also exposed to almost daily media attention worldwide because of terrorist bombing incidents, bizarre murders, kidnaps and alleged plots against government officials.

Bates used the Hearst-SLA and Chowchilla bus kidnap cases as examples of how involvement of the public can bring the perpetrators to justice.

"On Feb. 4, 1974, Patty Hearst was kidnapped from her Berkeley apartment. Within 24 hours we knew the names of all SLA members. But none of them would talk. Those of us in the San Francisco office interviewed some 29,000 persons during the course of the case.

"If those who initially knew something would have told us then, we would have solved that case in two months," Bates contended.

"Now in the Chowchilla bus kidnap case, I never had so many calls in my 36 years of law enforcement. Nobody wants to hide the kidnappers of children. And this case wasn't political. In two weeks it was all wrapped up ... because people reported what they saw. That's the difference in the two cases," Bates averred.

"Many reasons have been advanced as to what would reduce crime ... they point to high unemployment," Bates said, "yet in 1976, when unemployment was at its highest, crime did not increase."

Currently the director of security for Burns International Security Service, Bates said he became increasingly concerned during his FBI service with the rise in terrorist activities.

"Of 89 known terrorist bombings last year, 36 occurred in the San Francisco Bay Area." He said there have been 22 bombings to date in 1977.

He referred to the breakup of one apparent terrorist group with the confiscation of 150 pounds of trigger-ready explosives and members of the so-called Emiliano Zapata Unit of the New World Liberation Front in Richmond last year.

"Most of these bombings are aimed at the corporate giants — PG&E and Safeway. What do they demand? That the rates be decreased, that the poor people, minorities and those on welfare get free service. Yet the damages (of the bombings) are paid by you the rate payers," continued Bates.

Bates characterized the latter groups as "about the same ilk as the SLA."

Referring to his post-FBI days since June, Bates said "I've found that since I retired I have some rights. I found that I could speak out on things that couldn't be talked about in public before. I've had some fun in speaking out and I'll continue to do so."

Questions ran the gamut from Patty Hearst to the death penalty, gun control and Watergate.

Was Patty Hearst brainwashed?

Bates doesn't believe she was. Nor does he believe that she was forced to help commit the Hibernia Bank robbery in San Francisco. Bates said that none of the 495 photos taken by bank cameras during the robbery truly indicate whether Donald (Cinque) DeFreeze was holding a gun on her.

However, Bates told the large audience that Miss Hearst's gun was functioning and loaded when she entered the bank with other alleged SLA members.

Bates spent nine full days talking with Miss Hearst during the course of the investigation, after she, the Harrises and Wendy Yoshimura were apprehended at 288 Precita and 625 Morse in San Francisco.

Who's behind the NWLF?

"We have a wealth of information and evidence but do not know who the masterminds, the persons behind the terrorist activities, are."

Gun control?

"I don't have any objection to it. But I don't think gun control is the answer the crimes committed with a gun," Bates commented.

On the death penalty:

"I have no problem with the death penalty because I've seen the victims side all my life." Bates told of a grisly discovery in a case back in Nebraska many years ago. "I have no feelings whatsoever about the convicted persons in death penalty cases. I've seen some persons executed and I haven't lost a moment of sleep. In fact, I've gone away saying to myself, 'that person will never commit that crime again.' "

County fair pact changes delay signing

OAKLAND — A request by Alameda County Fair Board members for changes in the proposed five - year contract with county government has held up signing of the proposed agreement.

Alameda County supervisors were set to discuss the contract yesterday, but on Monday they received a letter from County Administrator Loren Enoch outlining a list of 11 changes asked by the fair board.

Supervisors continued the issue to a date to be announced so they can digest Enoch's four page letter and the changes asked in the proposed nine page contract.

One of the more important issues — the length of terms for fair board members and how many will be appointed by the supervisors — is not in the contract. It should be discussed and decided prior to discussion of the contract, Enoch told supervisors.

One contract provision relevant to membership is in the proposed draft — the fair board is willing to have any changes in its by - laws approved by supervisors before they take effect.

Affirmative actin hiring, recently an important subject with the board of supervisors, is written into the contract.

The fair board says in its letter to the county that it will, "giving due consideration to the geographical location of the fairgrounds and other matters peculiar to the administration and operation of the fairgrounds, use the Alameda County affirmative action program as a guideline in establishing a goal ..."

The county has wanted to do the land acquisition and capital improvements for future fair expansion. The fair board said that there won't be any land acquisition in the next five years. If there is, the county can deal with it through the fair's budget, said the fair board.

Under capital improvements, there are many minor items which ought to be done without a lot of long - distance red tape and therefore the approval of the county director of public works ought to be sufficient for those, said the fair board.

Fair directors don't get paid, but they would have $4,500 made available to them to cover out - of - pocket expenses at various fair activities, according to the first draft of the contract. Fair directors think the sum ought to be $10,000.

The county and fair board expect to shift the responsibility for insurance to the county, but the fair then will pay a premium to the county expected to cost somewhere between $75,000 and $100,000.

There is a difference of opinion over the cancellation clause which the county has proposed. The fair directors want a five year contract with no cancellation clause. They contend that the current draft provision really makes the agreement a series of five one - year contracts.

The fair contends that with the cancellation clause, it will be tougher for its board to negotiate money - saving multi - year contracts with concessionaires.

"On the other hand," said Enoch, "their conditions change over the five years which require modification during the term."

Sandia tests new nuclear strong boxes

Times Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — A nuclear fuel shipping cask mounted on a rocket-fired railcar, survived a crash into a concrete wall at 81 miles per hour Tuesday in a test conducted by the Energy Research and Development Administration.

The 74 ton cask received "minor surface dents but was essentially undamaged." during the test at ERDA's Sandia Laboratories in Albuquerque, N.M., officials said.

ERDA said in a statement issued here that while the railcar was demolished, the cask remained fully pressurized, "a sign that there were no breaks or leakage."

The test crash was the fourth in a series which ERDA has carried out this year to determine how well containers used to transport nuclear materials can withstand severe accidents.

In the three earlier tests, ERDA said the casks were slammed into concrete embankments at 61 and 84 miles per hour and struck broadside by a speeding locomotive. "The integrity of the casks was not breached during any of the earlier tests," ERDA said.

Water unit seeks permit

PLEASANTON — LAVWMA officials have asked the city for a conditional use permit in the latest step towards construction of the controversial "super sewer" pipeline.

The permit will cover the export pump station and regulating reservoirs on 15 acres near the I-580 — I-680 interchange.

The Livermore - Amador Valley Water Management Agency (LAVWMA) is under fire from some quarters of the Valley for amending its by-laws to allow construction without voter approval. Voters rejected the pipeline last November.

Locally, the CARD committee is circulating a petition to force a referendum on Pleasanton's part in the Valley wide agency.

City council will hear LAVWMA's permit request at its Oct. 12 meeting.

SRV to watch air traffic

Residents in the Twin Creeks section of San Ramon Valley have been urged by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) to watch for and report low flying aircraft in their area.

After witnessing several airplane crashes in the past few years, Twin Creeks homeowners reported they informed FAA officials they were concerned about the problem.

Seven pilots and/or passengers have been killed in plane accidents near Twin Creeks over the past three years.

FAA asked Twin Creeks homeowners to report serial numbers of aircraft. If that isn't possible, residents are to file a description of the plane plus a complaint.

Childs' theater workshop

The Livermore Area Recreation and Park District has scheduled a children's theater workshop to run Saturdays this fall from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Oct. 1 through Dec. 17. The workshop will end with a performance in which all class members will participate.

The course is for youngsters and teens in the fifth through ninth grades and is designed to introduce them to different aspects of the theater. Acting, makeup, scenery, lighting, costuming and movement will be taught along with backstage work. For more information call the LARPD, 447-7330.

Dublin boosters seek funds

Dublin High Athletic Boosters are conducting a fund-raiser that will culminate with a drawing Friday, Oct. 28, for a 1977 Pontiac Firebird automobile.

The Boosters will sell just 1,000 tickets, all for a $10 donation, with the drawing taking place at halftime of Dublin's homecoming game with San Ramon on the 28th.

Tickets may be obtained by calling 828-8893 or 828-3735.

Historical site offered

DUBLIN — Jack Weightman, one of the owners of the 7.8 acres surrounding the old Green store that was built in 1860, told county supervisors yesterday his investment group is willing to donate the century - old building to the Dublin Historical Preservation Association.

However, Weightman's offer appears academic at this point, accordin to Marie Cronin, a director of the DHPA.

"If and when his investment group sells the land, it really will be up to the buyer about whether we will be given the building," said Cronin.

Of course, there's the chance that some deal would be worked out to give the building to DHPA before the sale or contingent on it and then the building could be moved to DHPA's five acre complex of historical buildings a half - block down Dublin Boulevard from the old Green store.

But even that course may present a problem concerning the old building, which now serves the community as the Village Bar.

The best way to get state and federal historical funds for any restoration and/or acquisition of the building is to keep the building on its original site.

So the ideal thing would be a donation of that important corner of the Weightman parcel, something that still would have to be discussed between the property owners and the DHPA.

The Green store is to the DHPA complexso close that keeping the store on its original site would work out well, said Cronin.

The supervisors yesterday were asked by the county park advisory committee to give local historical designation to the building, opening the way to state and federal designations that would help obtain funding for the project.

The supervisors, after hearing Weightman's offer, decided to kick it back to the park committee for more study and talks with Weightman.

The Green store served as Dublin's first store, post office and library. It remained in the Green family's ownership for 110 years until it was sold to Weightman's group approximately seven years ago.

For sandwich shop?

SP looks at lease

PLEASANTON — Attorneys for Southern Pacific and leasees of the 100-year-old train station in town will be sifting through a recently signed lease looking for a sandwich shop.

The transportation and land giant recently signed a lease with the U.S. Glass and Mirror Co., a Santa Clara County firm with roots in the Valley.

But the mother of the leasees, Lorraine Bell of Alamo, has applied to the city for a zoning certificate for a sandwich shop.

SP says the lease covers only the glass company and any necessary, ancillary services.

But Bob Humphreys, attorney for Bell and the glass company, says "that's a matter of legal interpretation."

SP has been searching for a permanent, full-course restaurant to anchor its antique station. So far, all eyes have turned to the local Villa Armando winery, which operates La Villa on St. John Street.

Winery spokesman Walt Wood, who also serves on the city's planning commission, says he is "neither confirming nor denying" talks with SP, adding there "actually hasn't been anything nailed down."

"With us, we don't know whether we're hot or not." Others have been dickering with the SP, but Wood says he does not know who they are.

Attorney Humphreys says his clients "signed the lease to get the property for a while," waiting for the railway to make its move.

"Either one (the sandwich shop or the glass company) is an interim deal to make temporary use of the building," he says. His clients "were afraid SP negotiations would go on forever."

By putting the century old station into the city's historic landmark protection, city council "is creating a problem for interim use," he adds. "It's a small deal made into a big one."

Council's move also throws some obstacles into any future use of the building, since, by the historical designation, any use will have to be approved by the landmark committee.

Lorraine Bell is the mother of Chris and Dale Williams, owners of U.S. Glass and Mirror. The family apparently was raised in Pleasanton, and "has strong ties to the town," Humphreys says.

"I don't know what the family will do," Humphreys adds. "I'm waiting to hear from my client. It's up to them which way they want to go" with either a sandwich emporium or glass shop.

School budget cuts pondered

PLEASANTON — The Pleasanton Joint School District's Outdoor Education program may have to be eliminated or, at least, tuition raised if it is to remain a part of the district's offerings.

Trustees discussed the 1978 budget and priorities, in light of the recent passage of a funding bill (AB 65), at a special meeting open to the public Monday night.

Amador Valley Joint High School District trustees held a similar session last night.

Present at both meetings were a smattering of teachers, principals, classified representatives, but hardly any members of the general public.

Trustees of both the Amador and the Pleasanton districts also held executive sessions to discuss negotiations.

Contract negotiations in most Valley districts have been slowed until it could be determined how much would be received as the result of AB 65 being signed into law.

Though it could not be confirmed, Pleasanton trustees are concerned with the continuing absences of board member Joe Schwab. The latter missed his eighth consecutive meeting Monday and, reportedly, could not be reached either before or immediately after the meeting to determine whether he is considering resigning.

Schwab had stated more than two weeks ago he would submit his resignation "in two weeks."

He has missed 50 per cent of all trustee meetings over the past 1½ years.

Pleasanton trustees focused primarily on options presented for possible budget cuts. The board believes it will have to delay implementation of an adaptive physical education class.

The district must first identify those youngsters who are handicapped.

Compliance date for the federally-mandated program is next year.

The Pleasanton district had placed the program in the budget, thus causing concern over whether it should be implemented or withdrawn until the following year.

Outdoor Education costs the Pleasanton district $8,000 above tuitions paid. Trustees debated raising tuition, modifying the program or eliminating it outright.

Tom Zach, president of the Amador Valley Teachers Association, and Wanda Robison of the classified employees chapter both said they opposed inclusion of funds in the budget for a public relations position.

Funds in both Amador and Pleasanton budgets would pay for the position, which has been handled in the past by current staff members on a parttime basis.

Ridge road probe idles

OAKLAND — The slow, deliberate process about whether the county should abandon Santos Ranch Road on the Pleasanton Ridge got a little slower yesterday.

The county supervisors continued the item to 11 a.m., Nov. 29, so that the planning commission can review the proposed abandonment to see if there will be any impact on the county general plan. The Valley's supervisor, Valerie Raymond, wanted more discussion about whether or not the supervisors are serious about abandoning the road. The staff was talking in terms of a full-fledged Environmental Impact Report and she thought the county could save time about the EIR if the supervisors, from a policy standpoint, don't want to abandon the road.

A staff member replied that the EIR will give more information on which the supervisors can base their decision.

Charles Kinney, a property owner on the Pleasanton Ridge, asked whether the county will continue to have liability for accidents on the road because the design was approved by the county.

County Counsel Richard Moore said that information will be included in the EIR.

Pleasanton's Erika Hazen will reign over Grand National.

Grand National Expo

Record in premiums

A record $400,000 in premiums and prize money will be awarded at the 1977 Grand National Livestock Exposition, Rodeo, and Horse Show at the San Francisco Cow Palace, October 28 — November 6.

The "three-in-one" presentation features livestock judging all 10 days, with arena performances of the rodeo and horse show scheduled each night, plus weekend matinees. Quarter Horse judging actually is held October 27 — the day before the expo begins.

"The Grand National is held annually to support and promote California's $4 billion livestock industry," said Grand National Manager Darrell Chapman.

"We want to provide those in the livestock industry the opportunity to measure their stock against the finest livestock in the nation. They can evaluate their own breeding programs, exchange ideas, and buy and sell the best breeding stock available.

"In the long run" Chapman added, "what we are trying to do is help the producer provide the consumer with meat and dairy products at as low a price as possible with today's inflation, and yet provide the producer with a fair profit."

The livestock exposition will offer more than $159,000 in premiums — record for the Cow Palace. The breakdown includes almost $105,000 for beef cattle, $21,000 for dairy cattle, $19,131 for sheep, and $14,767 for swine.

Four national shows are scheduled in the Beef Cattle Division: the $18,000 National Shorthorn Show; the $12,500 Register of Merit Hereford Show; the $10,000 Role of Excellence Show for Charolais; and the $9,600 Show of Excellence for Brangus. Also scheduled is the $3,000 National Shropshire Sheep Show.

"This is the first year that the National Brangus Show has ever been held," Chapman pointed out, "and the first time since 1951 that the National Shorthorn Show has been at the Cow Palace. This is definitely one of the finest schedules that we have had at the Grand National Livestock Exposition."

Full schedules of breeding and market classes will be offered for dairy cattle, sheep, and swine. For the first time, a live and carcass contest will be held in the Swine Division, with $3,550 in premiums offered, including $750 to the combined Live and Carcass Supreme Champion hog.

Eleven livestock sales — six for beef cattle, four for sheep, and one for swine — are scheduled at the Grand National. Among them are the Western Breeding Swine Sale, Oct. 29; the Cattleman's All-Breed Range Bull Sale, Nov. 3; and the All-Breed Sheep Sale, Nov. 5.

Running concurrently with the livestock exposition, the Grand National Horse Show will feature a record 199 classes and more than 2700 entries. Plus, the nation's top cowboys will compete in the season's last professional rodeo contest. Fourteen arena performances are scheduled during the show.

Further information may be obtained by writing the Cow Palace, P. O. Box 34206, San Francisco 94134.

'Water pirates' could hurt Valley underground supply

OAKLAND — Water pirates — those folks who pump water out of their own wells and sell it to customers outside the Valley — could hurt the Valley's underground water supply, Supervisor Valerie Raymond said yesterday.

Raymond told fellow supervisors the other county supervisors yesterday that she had heard rumors of someone in Pleasanton pumping water out of a well on the property and selling it to swimming pool companies in Contra Costa County.

Zone 7, the Valley's water wholesaler, is recharging the water basin with some of its imported (from the Delta) water and the county ought to keep an eye on the possibility of pirating activity, said Raymond. She made no specific suggestions about policing the water ground table.

Zone 7 staffer Mun Mar told The Times that it is impossible to police the underground water table. He said he has no evidence that anyone is pirating water, but he also has no evidence they are not, either.

"It's possible there is some construction activity and someone is taking water out of a hydrant, but we can't track those things."

Supervisor Fred Cooper of Alameda also expressed concern about the underground water supply. He thought the supervisors should check the drought in January and see if it will be necessary then to ask golf courses and other non-essential users to quit watering with underground water supplies.

One supervisor pointed out that someone in Butte County is selling water from his well to the Los Angeles area.

City reexamines park

A revised timetable for development of Pleasanton's mammoth Sports and Recreation Park on Hopyard Road keynotes this Wednesday's 7:30 p.m. meeting.

The commission will meet in city council chambers, 30 W. Angela St.

Recreation department staff is suggesting a half-dozen meetings among commissioners, neighbors, homeowners associations and organized sports groups. The revised timetable depends on the success of the city's grant funding applications, according to staff.

Dublin ponders gift

The store will be the site of the reviewing stand for the second annual Heritage Center Fair Oct. 15. The parade begins at 10 a.m. and will wind up at the DHPA complex. Entries still are being sought for the parade. If interested, call the DHPA at 828-3377.

There will be many activities during the day including hot air balloon ascension, antique car display, a $5 steak barbecue, and a street dance. For barbecue tickets, call the DHPA number or Mrs. Piazza at 828-1577.

Tickets also are available at UCB bank in Livermore and Dublin and Wells Fargo bank in Dublin.

Livermore fund request okayed

OAKLAND — Livermore's request for $80,000 from its total allocation of $172,621 in Mayor's Formula allocation money was approved by Alameda County supervisors yesterday.

City of Livermore will use the money for the Railroad Ave. extension from North P Street to East Stanley Boulevard which is underway.

Book sale

Members of the Pleasanton Library are looking for people who will donate books to their next sale on Saturday, Oct. 15. Call Gretchen Clatworthy at 462-3535 for more information.

Mission Park meeting

PLEASANTON — The Mission Park Homeowners Association has slated its first meeting for 8 p.m. this Thursday in the Pleasanton School's multi-purpose room on First Street.

The would-be association's steering committee will present a set of proposed by-laws. If they are accepted Thursday night, officers will be elected.

The by-laws suggest a one-time-only $5 per member dues.

Meanwhile, steering committee member Bill Hankins has "persuaded" the city to water plants he installed this week at the Sunol Boulevard entrance to Mission Park.

The plants were donated by neighboring Casa Verde Nursery, also located on Sunol Boulevard.

The steering committee was formed last month.

Paper harvest

The Harvest Park Home and School Club's annual newspaper collection drive is underway. Persons wishing to contribute bundles should secure them and bring them to the side parking lot at Harvest Park School on Valley Avenue in Pleasanton between 2:30 and 3:30 p.m. each school day or between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. For pickup service, call 462-3162. Mrs. Gerri Martin is in charge of the drive. Funds from the paper drive go to projects of the Home and School Club. Tossing in the initial bundles collected here are, from left, Keith Crook, Pat Thorn, Gerri Martin, and Allison Thorn.

Low-flying craft object of SR lookout

SAN RAMON — Twin Creek homeowners have been urged to watch for and report low flying aircraft in their area by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA).

A statement in the Twin Creeks September newsletter explained, "Since Twin Creeks has seen several airplane accidents in the past few years, we have extended our concern to the FAA about the problem ... the FAA is on our side."

Twin Creeks subdivision is located west of Interstate 680 between Norris Canyon Road and Crow Canyon Road. Nearby sections of San Ramon Valley have been the scene of several fatal plane crashes over the past few years. Pilots and passengers were killed.

A plane crash Jan. 17, 1974 killed two; another on June 2, 1977 killed three and the last one, Aug. 7, 1977, resulted in two fatalities.

FAA officials told Twin Creek residents if they could not read serial numbers of low-flying aircraft, they should still call FAA and file a description and complaint.

Twin Creek homeowners were informed by the FAA that Twin Creeks and nearby sections were not designated as a training area for potential pilots but were favorite spots to practice.

"The area near San Ramon is a natural one for pilots to practice since it is not as congested and is near several airports," a FAA spokesman said.

Pilot errors and crowding the skies over San Ramon Valley seemed to be the major cause of the crashes, the spokesman added.

The aim of Twin Creek homeowners is to work together toward insuring a safer community, the newletter explained.

Amador Adult classes stress self - care

Federal and state health planners and public health officials would be elated with Amador Adult Education's offerings this term!

Amador Adult Education leaders report a wide selection to promote wellness and self-care, consistent with current concepts and approaches to assure a healthy population.

The department notes that at the level of attitudes prerequisite to individual involvement in wellness and self-care, there are two classes for which the instructor is an occupational therapist: "Anticipating Independence" and "Take Charge of Your Life." At the applied level of specific emergency measures, three first aid and cardiopulmonary resuscitation courses are offered, each at a different location for convenience. At the maintenance level, there are four courses in physical conditioning listed under the Adult School's "general interest" category. And at the level of responses to particular kinds of stresses in daily life, there are three parenting courses (One with a nursery school lab), one class dealing with communication situations; and one focused on adult developmental sequence (With the best-selling "Passages" as reference); one tending to female roles; and one entitled "Creative Living" to enable readjustment to the community after hospitalization.

All of these still have spaces available for late registrants.

Amador Adult Education also has openings in the following classes:

Citizenship, creative writing, basic mathematics, English, English for the foreign-born, GED preparation, reading improvement, income tax preparation, secretarial brushup, sales and merchandising, typing, insurance in laymen's terms, confident communication, sharing ideas for parenthood, women — their roles and their identity, everything you wanted to know about art but were afraid to ask, band, art appreciation, batik, general crafts, guitars, oils at Dublin High), outdoor sketching and painting, portrait painting, painting and drawing (mixed media), sketching for beginners, weaving as an art form, conversational French, conversational Spanish, conversational Italian.

Also, astronomy (telescope), boat safety, birding field trips in natural history, electronics, graphology, home nursing-CPE review, know your valley insects, solar collectors/wind-driven electric generators, standard first aid, theory of soccer for coaches, sewing (stretch knits), macrame, interior decorating, patterns and adjustments, quilting, and sewing techniques for quality.

For further information, contact the Amador Adult Education office at 462-0022 from 9 a.m. to 440 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Patronage survey

DMV 'overwhelmed'

Valley residents are treating the state Department of Motor Vehicles' patronage survey with more than just a passing interest, according to Livermore office officials.

Response to the questionnaire published in last Thursday's Times has been overwhelming, said DMV representative Sandy Bassett.

Even though the mails only brought the first batch in Monday, already more than 100 questionnaires have been received.

The page one survey asks motorists what day of the week and what time would be most convenient. It also asks Valley residents to indicate which DMV office they now use.

Meanwhile, DMV has applied for a conditional use permit to build its proposed Valley center on some 2.6 acres at Dorman Road and West Las Positas Boulevard in Pleasanton. Current office space is in Livermore.

The state would build a 7,800-square-foot, one-story building with 125 parking spaces.

An Environmental Impact Report already has been prepared.

City council will hear the application at its Oct. 12 meeting.

Dance at Dublin

"Mogul" will provide the sounds for the first junior class sponsored dance of the year Friday night at Dublin High School. The dance is open to any high school student and Dublin alumni are welcome to attend. The dance is scheduled after the Gaels' football game with Monte Vista and will last from 9:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. Admission is $1.50 with a student body card and $2.50 without. Proceeds go to the junior class treasury. Members of "Mogul" shown here are, from left, Steve Phillips, Brian Gardner, Tim Peck, and John Bryant. The dance will be held in the Dublin High Little Theatre.

Rothenberg appeals justice

MARTINEZ — Contra Costa County Superior Court Judge Martin E. Rothenberg has been chosen to serve as a justice of the First District Court of Appeals for the next two months.

Rothenberg received confirmation of his temporary assignment from Rose Bird, Chief Justice of the State Supreme Court. The assignment is a first for Contra Costa County.

Judge John C. Minney of the Walnut Creek-Danville Municipal Court will fill in as a Superior Court judge while Rothenberg is sitting on the appellate bench.

Rothenberg has ten years of service in the appellate division of the county's superior court.

He was appointed to the newly-created department 7 of the superior court on Sept. 18, 1959, by Governor Edmund G. Brown. In the following year's primary, he was elected to his first full term as judge.

ABSTRACT — first place

Peggy Frank — "I've been working in acrylic on large canvases. I do strong, fairly direct painting and I am beginning to add a lot of small brush work for contrast and interest. This one is an Indian theme vocative of Colorado and Wyoming. Basically it is an expressionistic painting with obvious influence from the New York school of painting a strong, direct non-objective school."

BLACK AND WHITE PHOTO — first place

Ron Suttora — "A nsel Adams is my favorite — I use his zone technique to get as life-like as possible. I take pictures for myself not judges. This one has the impact of size and mass with the granite. It probably had more impact than my others, though I wouldn't have chose it as the best. I have a new custom printing set up for color and do my own black and white processing. Color is more restricted and doesn't have the lattitude that black and white has. In portraits, color is here to stay."

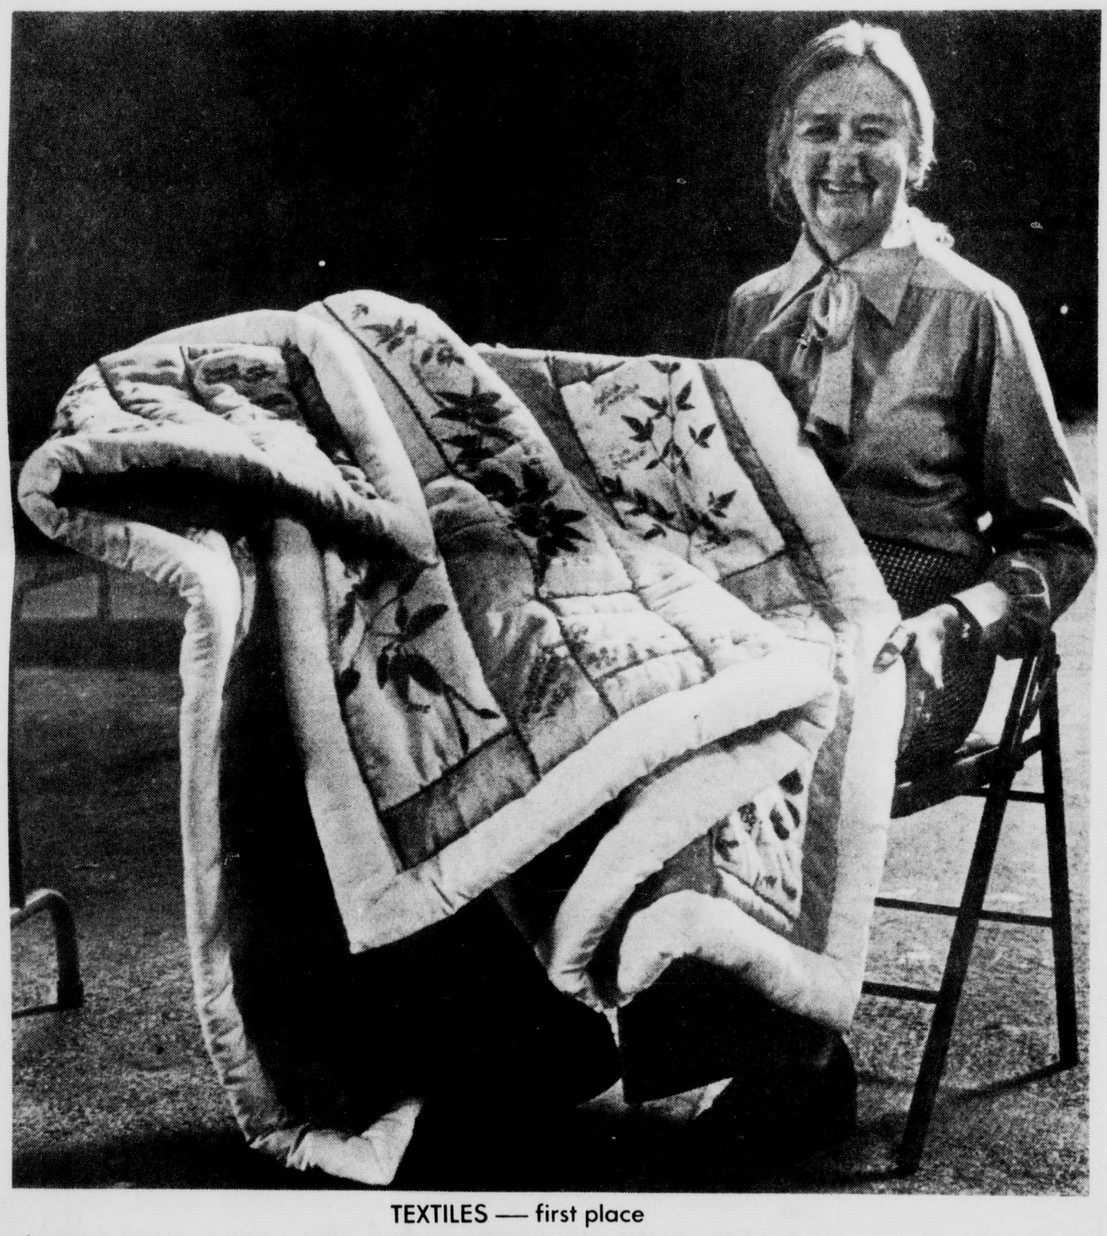
Festival fine arts winners announced



TEXTILES — first place

Lee Plato Smith— "I have generally worked in textiles. This is a very personal statement because it is a reflection of my interest in gardening as well as my interest in textile arts. It is Japanese leaf printing on Viscose Shallis fabric. The leaves are all from my garden and the dyes are vegetable dyes made from plants in my garden. It is totally hand stiched and decorated."

THREE-DIMENSIONAL — third place

Karen Jean Jenkins— "I do a lot of three dimensional work. Right now I'm working basically in sculpture. I had a cherry tree that I really loved and it died. I've been using the wood for the last six months in many ways. I like to handle my work and I like others to handle it too. My interest is in volume and texture."

STILL LIFE — second place

Lili Gordon— "I do like to paint in oils. I strive just to represent the beautiful thing that you see. I don't understand abstract. I like to work in oils because when you apply oils you can do what you like. In watercolors after a very long time you can get it to do what you want, but generally watercolor will rule you. Oils are somehow much richer."

Champagne preview will kick off festival art show

Festival '77 art show entries were judged Sunday. Following are the judges' selections in six categories. The works may be previewed at a champagne reception Friday, Sept. 30 at the Veterans Memorial Hall in Livermore. The preview begins at 8 p.m. and costs $3.50. Works will also be on display during the festival.

Livermore City purchase awards went to Muriel Dogget and Marlyn Calhoun. Jacquie Larsen won the Raffle purchase textile award and the LARPD purchase award went to Nancy Ragaini. Pat Hunter's "Interlude" won Best Transparent Watercolor.

Other winners are:

Landscape, all media. First — Patricia Hunter Nature Series No. 12) , Second Vickie Goettsche (Mirage), Third — Judith Andreson (Cling), Honorable Mention — Edna Tunison, Doug Desmond and Clair Haratani.

Portrait, Figure, Still Life, all media. First — Clair Haratani (Munching Cow), Second — Lili Gordon (Bowl of Fruit), Third — Inez Doyal (Iris and Rose).

Abstract, all media. First — Peggy Frank (Medicine Bow), Second Timovrian (Reflection in Space), Third — J. Wise (Coroville Series No. 31), Honorable Mention — Thomas Frank, Peggy Frank.

Textiles, Stitchery. First — Lee Plato Smith (Rememberance from Our Garden), Second — Olga Condouris (Necklace No. 2), Third Jane Armstrong (Hanging Rug), Honorable Mention — Adele Nickison, Sue Ann Dines.

Three-dimensional pottery. First — Dane Larsen (Space Window), Second — McCollough-Posehn (Wine Pot and Cups), Third — Greg Andson (Undone), Honorable Mention — Dane Larsen.

Three-dimensional, other media. First — Ted Kiss (Backbone Connected), Second — Ted Kiss (Eye of Night), Third

- Karen Jean Jenkins (Bundles), Honorable Mention — Bill Green, Maggie Sciaretta.

'Moon' beams for O'Neill project

The moon shining over Eugene O'Neill's Tao House in Danville Saturday night was hardly a moon for the misbegotten — it was a moon for fortunate theater goers.

Those lucky enough to reserve tickets to the special presentation of "Moon for the Misbegotten" before they quickly sold out were treated to a rare event.

The barn on the O'Neill estate provided the outdoor staging complete with two well-fed hogs penned off stage. The lighting genius was progress of the sun setting to correspond with the timing of the play which opens in early evening and climaxes at midnight. A nearly full moon and a sky filled with stars provided the special effects.

The horseshoe tacked over the barn door pointing down letting all the good luck drain out was a sign for what was to come in the play for the main characters, Josie Hogan, her father Phil Hogan and James Tyrone, her love.

But, the horseshoe was not representative of the O'Neill Foundation's actions to save and restore the Noble Prizer winner's Danville home.

Two years ago, the foundation, organized by Danville residents Darlene Blair and Lois Sizoo, saved Tao House from being sold to developers with an eye more toward condominiums than theater.

The group lobbied to have the State buy the house. It won the legislature's approval and was then listed as a National Historic Site.

Now, with its future secure from developers, there is still a long journey ahead to restore and develop the area into a center for the arts.

Inside the house are letters to the foundation from Liv Ullman, Charles Chaplin and state and national legislators. Honorary members of the foundation include Katharine Hepburn who was nominated for an Oscar for her role in "Long Day's Journey into Night," Ingrid Bergman, Walter Matthau, Helen Hayes and many other distinguished performers.

The exact shape the master plan will take is still in the air. Some, like Hepburn, say it should be used to stage significant or neglected plays. Others think it would make a perfect haven for playwrights and others have many more suggestions.

The house is now owned by the State of California, but responsibility for its operation and programming remain with the foundation. Currently federal funds of $40,000 are available if the foundation can match that with $80,000 by November of this year.

O'Neill bought the Danville residence with money from his Noble Prize. He and his wife, actress Carlotta Monterey, lived there from 1937 to 1944.

While in Danville, O'Neill wrote "The Iceman Cometh," "A Touch of the Poet," "Hughie" and "Long Day's Journey into Night."

And, he penned his final play, "A Moon for the Misbegotten," there. One imagines him looking out his studio in the two-story house to the very barn where hi play was staged for its special presentation this past weekend.

He would, no doubt, be pleased with how the Oregon Shakespear players brought his play to life at its birthplace. There was little doubt it would be a successful venture — the same troupe had had done the play at Ashland earlier this year in a highly successful run.

And yet, there was something more to it than just good theater. It could have been the setting, the outdoors or the effects of the waxing moon. Whatever, it was the kind of event that you are glad to have been to — to look back and say, "Oh yes, I was there."

And, it was a good play to choose. Unlike O'Neill's autobiographical drama "Long Day's Journey into Night," it is a shorter, less gloomy play.

There is the sadness of many O'Neill works. The realization that love doesn't always mean happiness. That too often it is sad and painful. But, there were far more bright moments. The constant bickering between father and daughter and the bantering between Phil Hogan and Jim Tyrone provided laughs, often tear-lined in the darker moments.

But, the darker moments pass, as they have for the Tao House and one is certain that the reassurance Hogan gives his daughter, "You and me never been beaten when we put our wits together," is the same spirit that will carry the Eugene ONeill Foundation to a successful future.

— By Marie Felde

Oregon Shakespearean players Robert Smith and Jean Smart bicker during an early scene from "Moon for the Misbegotten" to benefit the Eugene O'Neill Foundation's effort to save his Danville home.

VPAC STILL ALIVE AND PLANNING

Yes, Valley Performing Arts Company (VPAC) is still "alive" and very well!

With one production under its belt ("Carnival" last June), the board of directors of VPAC is planning a "season" with the first production tentatively set for January and, hopefully, at the Chabot College Valley Campus' new multi-use building.

The building is now close to completion and will provide theatrical groups with a new venue. VPAC is hopeful it can be among the first to use the building.

As now planned, rehearsals for the next VPAC production would get underway shortly. Keeping the family in mind. VPAC is considering something "light" that will draw both young and old.

Second production of the prospective season would be scheduled possibly in May or June of 1978.

Persons interested in trying out or assisting in any phase of production can call board president Gil Maines or wife Patti at 846-0467.

Contra Costa Musical Theater's spectacular production of "The Music Man" continues this Friday and Saturday at Civic Arts Theatre, 1641 Locust, in downtown Walnut Creek.

As noted in our review last week, the CCMT rendition of Meredith Willson's American classic is the best little theatre musical we've ever had the opportunity to witness.

Tickets are available by calling the Civic Arts Box Office in Walnut Creek at 939-0355.

* * *

"Jesus Christ Superstar" has been scheduled by the Concord Pavilion for dates in October.

And to make it even better news, the production will star some of the original Broadway and Hollywood motion picture performers. Teddy Neeley is cast in the lead with Carl Anderson as Judas.

Play dates are Oct. 20, 21, 22, 23, 27 and 28, with curtain at 8 p.m.

Ticket reservations may be made by calling the Concord box office at 798-3311 or Civic Arts in Walnut Creek at the phone number above.

KMPX change

KMPX, the area's "big band" station, will change its format to religious programming, if a proposed license change is put into effect, according to the KMPX Listeners' Guild.

Listeners of the station are organizing to stop the change, and have gathered signatures which were presented to the FCC. Presently, the KMPX Listeners' Guild is planning a legal battle to keep the station's format as it is. Those who would like more information on the Guild shuld contact the organization at 1729 Arch St. No. 4, Berkeley, CA 94709.

California Craft Media '77, an exhibit sponsored by the Civic Arts Gallery in Walnut Creek, will continue tonight with a special film exploring various crafts.

Pottery, glass works, and wooodworking will be among the crafts covered in the 8 p.m. showing at the Walnut Creek Civic Arts Theatre. Admission is $1.50.

Someone's Got to Play the Palace, a musical based on the end of vaudeville, continues at the Willows Theatre in Concord Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 p.m., through Oct. 29. For ticket information, call 798-3311.

Chabot College continues its art exhibition of metaphysical images by William Fontana and Barbara Gustafson, at the college gallery, Building 900-1000. Hours are Monday through Thursday from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m., and Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. No admission charge.

Four up and coming Bay Area bands will be featured in the Concord Pavilion's afternoon "Showcase of Talent," Saturday, Oct. 1 at 1 p.m.

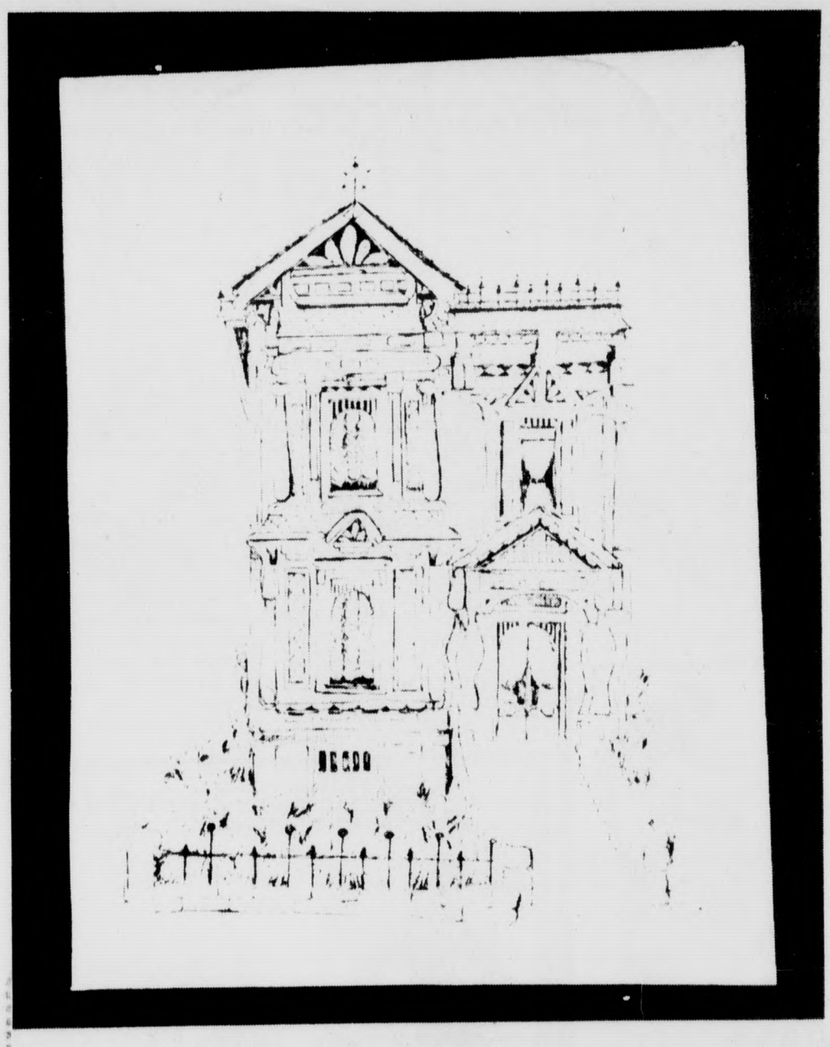
Bands included in the concert are Hot Knives, Companion, Streamliner and Greensleeves. Tickets for the concert are available at all BASS outlets. Proceeds from the show will benefit the Concord Youth Council.

The Sinfonia of Northern California will perform at the Walnut Creek Civic Arts Theatre, Tuesday, Oct. 4 at 8:30 p.m. The program will include works by Telemann, Tartini and J.S. Bach's Brandenburg Concerto No. 2. For ticket information, call the theatre box office at 939-0355.

Carlos Montoya, the world-famed master of Flamenco guitar, will be heard in concert at the Masonic Auditorium in San Francisco, Tuesday, Oct. 4 at 8 p.m. Tickets are available at Macy's, Ticketron and other agencies. For more information, call 775-2021.

The French comic farce, A Flea in Her Ear, by Georges Feydeau, is the first presentation in the Berkeley Repertory's Tenth Anniversary Season. The production continues through Oct. 23 at 2980 College Ave., Berkeley. For information, call 845-4700.

The Pleasanton Art League is looking for area volunteers to help out with a planned Nov. 12 and 13 fall art show. For more information, call Wilma Stout at 846-8715.



Symphony soloist spots available

Applications are now being accepted for auditions for youth soloist with the Livermore-Amador Symphony.

The final date for submission of applications is Oct. 24. High school and junior high musicians are eligible to compete.

On Sunday afternoon, Nov. 6, Dr. Arthur Barnes and a judge from outside the Valley will select finalists to perform in a recital that evening at 7:30 p.m. in the choral room at Livermore High School.

The program will be presented free by the Livermore-Amador Symphony Board Association.

PAL art in park

Area craftspeople will be showing and selling their wares at the Oct. 8 and 9 "Fall Festival," sponsored by the Pleasanton Art League.

The festival will be held at the Acquatic Park on Black Avenue, and will include crafts sales and demonstrations. An art showing will also be held at the nearby Cultural Arts Center.

Victorian art

Works by Pleasanton artist Terri Bunce are part of the two-woman art show, sponsored by the Pleasanton Art League, now at Franklin Savings and Loan, 561 Main St., Pleasanton. The 60 paintings of oils by Webb, and watercolors and graphics, including pen and inks of Victorian homes by Bunce are scheduled to be exhibited through Nov. 12. Hours of the showing are from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Neighborhood council meets begin Tuesday in Pleasanton

PLEASANTON — Neighborhood city council meetings will resume next month when council members and city staff hold forth for Pleasanton Valley area residents.

The meeting is slated for 7:30 p.m., Oct. 4, at the Cultural Arts Center, 4477 Black Ave.

It will be the fourth meeting for the area in the past two years.

Meetings are held in the neighborhoods to encourage residents of the area to meet and discuss general city matters, and to address specific neighborhood concerns.

City council and staff may be bombarded with questions over the proposed Del Valley Parkway, as well as the recently passed policy to cut street lighting 20 percent.

The meeting does not follow standard council format.

Instead, city council and top city staff will be introduced and council members will make brief presentation on matters of current interest both in the neighborhood and the city.

The meeting is not limited to Pleasanton Valley residents, but is open to the entire community.

Visiting college speakers scheduled at career center

PLEASANTON — The list of college speakers scheduled to be present at the Amador Valley High School career center during the next two months has been announced by Nora H. Doherty, career center specialist.

This year, Ms. Doherty notes, there are significant changes in financial aid procedures and deadlines and parents of students are encouraged to come and hear the representatives of the colleges and universitys.

The first speaker will be present in the career center Friday at 10:45 a.m. and is from Pepperdine University, a private school with its main campus in Malibu in Southern California.

In following weeks, the following schools will be represented:

Oct. 3 — Oregon State, 11 a.m.; Oct. 6 — Holy Names, 9 a.m., and University of the Pacific, 11:30 a.m.; Oct. 7 — Santa Clara University, 11:40 a.m.; Oct. 20 — Cal State Hayward, 9 a.m., this representative can talk about all 19 California State University schools; Oct. 24 — Loyola-Marymount University, 11:15 a.m.; Oct. 26 — Azusa Pacific College, 10:45 a.m.; Oct. 27 — Seattle Pacific, 8:30 a.m.; Nov. 29— Central Cllege, 1 p.m.

For additional information on college representatives to be present or the College Board ATP calendar for 1977-78, contact Ms. Doherty at the Amador Valley High career center.

Junior horse show winners announced

In the English Division, Linda Fletcher took the high point trophy for ages 14 and under. Lynn Farinsky took the champion status, and reserve champion was Suzy Frugoli of San Anselmo.

Charlotte Anderson took the high point trophy for ages 15 to 17. Champion was Jen Longstreth and reserve champions were Jeanne Bowler and Gail Halford.

In the Western Division, the Tri-Valley Herald High Point Trophy for ages 13 and under went to Cindy Rohr, who was champion, and Brian Emrich of Livermore, who was reserve champion.

The "Doc" Root High Point Trophy for ages 14 through 17 went to Susan Graver, champion, and Linda Lease, reserve champion.

Extra trophies went to Susan Petersen, for the Ann Forni Trophy, class 31, ages 14 through 17, and to Tammy Casipit of Livermore, who won the Bud Benley Trophy, class 45, local resident.

The show was judged by Lucy Tipton in the English Division and Bill Sprague in the Western Division.

Cliff hanger

The Saga of Apperson Ridge is one of the great mysteries of our time. It is a mystery which few among us can comprehend.

There are those who remember when the Apperson family sought to extract a wealth of basalt from the rugged terrain east of Sunol that failed to support two generations of Apperson cattle ranchers. But the East Bay Regional Park District, which had more recently developed a park below the Apperson Ridge, said "No! We want no mining operation close by lands that are better suited to recreation."

And the Sierra Club, among others, added support to that mandate.

Finally, Bill Apperson saw that he could not withstand the Park District - Sierra Club onslaught, and he went out in search of investors who would transform his rocky ranch into a haven of recreational uses . . . horse trails, family barbecues and that sort of thing.

But again, the Park District said "No! We cannot allow such a recreation venture close by our park."

"But," Apperson protested, "this would be for recreational uses much like the recreational uses the Park District has developed alongside my ranch . . . except for motorcycle gangs which I would forbid because they raise hell with the cattle."

"Yes," the Park District replied, "but YOUR recreation is Commercial!"

And that is where the battle has been locked, for lo' these many years, and tens of thousands of dollars in court costs . . . private and public.

The question, which now seems headed for the Supreme Court of California — has really not changed: "Shall private property enjoy the same development rights as public property when the public use has already set the tone for much of that area?"

About the only difference between these two ventures is that Apperson would develop his land with private funds, charge admission, and then pay taxes forevermore. The Park District's "Sunol Valley Wilderness" is maintained with public funds, charges no admission and will never pay taxes.

Their court fight is of interest to all of us, particularly those of you who own property, or pay taxes.

Vandalism

The combined operations being undertaken by school, recreation district and city agencies in Livermore is a model for all of suburbia in the fight against wanton waste.

Vandalism has become much more than a prank, more even than its cost to society in dollars, although that has become quite a figure.

We are faced with the attitude of a large segment of society which seems to say, "We don't identify with your values, people, and therefore destruction holds no shame for us."

When a similar cry is voiced by youngsters from the black ghettoes of America's largest cities, most are inclined to heads write it off as "another problem of Big City America."

But when it is Livermore being vandalized, by the privileged children of upper middle class families, then we must begin to understand that it is not just race, or discrimination, or even unemployment, which prompts some young people to bend and break and crush anything that comes across their path.

Livermore is gathering all of its forces together for a careful city - wide look at the results of vandalism. That is an excellent start. Results, real results, will come from the community's patient persistence, and only when all youngsters are made to share in the concept of "community" where each of us respects the rights, the property and the values of all of us.

Hindsight/Foresight

'For the children'

"We are here for the children for they are our most valuable resource."

The new stationery heading of the Murray School District contains that slogan as well as a small drawing of youngsters large and small.

Perhaps that slogan should be, if not on the stationery of all districts, in the hearts and minds of negotiators as serious bargaining gets underway this week in Valley school districts.

Prior to the signing of AB 65 little more than a week ago, districts could not really get too far into contracts until they knew how much additional monies they might receive. Now they know.

We wonder if this slogan was uppermost in the thoughts of teachers and administrators in the Mount Diablo district.

And we trust that "the children" will occupy a primary spot in the thoughts of San Ramon district negotiators in the immediate days ahead.

Mediation sessions have not gone too well to date and the cloud of arbitrary action hangs over the district.

Are there lessons to be learned by all concerned from occurences of recent weeks in the Mount Diablo district? We believe so.

It is interesting to note that all the good intentions of teachers, administrators, parents and mediation officials went for naught until a legislator and two clergymen were asked to step in and affect a solution.

It is one thing to bargain and mediate in earnest, with attendant media coverage of all the items on the table, but it is something else again to have happen what has come to past in the huge Mount Diablo district.

Who does it hurt? Everybody . . . . . but especially the kids. Why can't we all realize this and proceed accordingly.

* * *

Tonight's Kansas City - Oakland A's baseball game will undoubtedly be the last A's game played at the Oakland - Alameda County Coliseum.

The A's finish up the season on the road and then, barring another surprise from an ailing Charles O. Finley, it'll be a quick trip into oblivion.

Or Washington, D.C. or New Orleans.

The ground work is laid for a meeting Oct. 4 to determine how many, if any, San Francisco Giants games might be played at the Coliseum next season.

Major League teams play 81-game home schedules. Should the A's franchise move, the Coliseum will be minus one more client (having earlier lost the California Golden Seals ice hockey team), and could use even a part-time attraction.

As a died-in-the-wool Giants fan, we would dearly love to see the National League entry play 20 or 25 league games in Oakland next season.

But first, Finley and the Coliseum commission have to work out that contract. It would seem at this point that having the A's, in their present condition, remain would be sheer folly.

Sniff the fruit

Somebody is fooling Mother Nature again.

They are taking out flavor from most of the fruit bought in grocery stores.

More and more you hear people commenting about this lack. They will say peaches aren't peachy or oranges orangy.

I agree.

The pretty-looking facsimiles in stores resemble genuine articles. Labels even identify lucious arrays as being apples, oranges, etc. But after one chomp you know you have been gypped.

I suspect the fruit crops are sprayed, dusted and fertilized so much they haven't the strength left to generate any flavor.

I overheard one gentleman say, "I'd give anything to find a worm in an apple again. At least I would know the apple had not been sprayed to death and would taste like an apple should."

Or perhaps picking time is geared toward getting fruit to stores looking pretty and flavor be hanged.

Maybe commercially sold fruit isn't left on trees or vines long enough for Ma Nature to perform final flavor rites.

If you were blindfolded and nibbled your way along rows of fruit in a grocery store, it is entirely possible your taste buds would have a breakdown trying to tell a nectarine from a cantaloupe.

Someone told me if you gave fruit the sniff test you could tell if it was flavorful or not. By golly! They had something there. Try it. Pick up an apple, a nectarine or whatever and smell it. If it doesn't smell like one, it probably won't taste like one.

Yep. Beauty before taste seems to be the motto in fruit selling circles.

For instance, try and find a White Rose nectarine on display during the short time they are available. They are the sweetest, juiciest, best tasting things that ever pleased your palate. But since they are small and usually arrive at the grocers looking bruised, they are rarely put out for sale.

In fact, during my annual scouting trip this year to find these nectarines, one produce man told me he had pitched the whole lot that had arrived the day before.

"They looked terrible," he said. "Nobody would buy such awful looking fruit."

Someone told me White Rose nectarines aren't going to be grown anymore. If that is so, maybe it's because nobody could figure out how to get rid of that good White Rose flavor and make them pretty.

I suppose one reason I miss delicious fruit is because I have had access to some of the best.

While growing up in Morley, Missouri, which is located in the bootheel portion of that state, I was surrounded by acres of the best cantaloupes and watermelons in the world.

Land around Morley has a special quality that produces these two items to perfection. I have never tasted any melons since that compared.

Another part of my life was spent in McAllen, Texas which is in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. That valley is ' 'rus belt famed for producing Ruby Red grapefruit.

Start your morning off by picking a tree-ripened Ruby and eating it immediately and you have started your day off right.

Then there was the white grapefruit we used to gobble by the bushel while living in the Indian River, Florida region.

As far as peaches go, Diebold's orchard in Kelso, Missouri is the only place that gets my blue ribbon for excellence. Their peaches are often the size ofsmall grapefruit. They are pretty enough to make an artist wish he could capture their beauty. And all of the sweet peachy taste you could ever imagine is in each bite.

Meanwhile, guess I'll go to the grocery store and start the sniffing routine. Maybe some local farmer has brought in some fruit that Mama Nature has had time to finish.

Maritime lobby on oil

By Common Cause

Hand out over $1 million in political donations and bolster that with a $900,000 campaign and the result is lobbying clout.

Maritime companies and unions, which receive millions of dollars in government subsidies, are now wielding that lobbying clout in behalf of legislation that would more than double their share of the oil import trade.

The lobbying compaign is promoting what the maritime interests call the "Oil Cargo Equity" bill. It would require that 9.5 per cent of oil shipments imported to the United States be carried on American tankers built and registered in the U.S. Currently, U.S. ships carry less than 4 per cent of foreign oil shipments to this country, but all coastal trade such as that from Alaska to refineries in the lower 48 states is required to be carried on American flag vessels.

The government's General Accounting Office has estimated the cost of the "Oil Cargo Equity" legislation to industry and consumers to be as high as $610 million a year, depending on whether oil imports increase and whether domestic companies raise their prices to correspond to the higher prices of imported oil.

The present oil cargo bill, despite its projected cost, is not as expensive as the "Energy Transportation Act" which both the House and Senate passed in 1974 and President Ford pocket vetoed. That legislation called for 30 per cent of oil imports to be carried on American tankers. At the time, Common Cause Founding Chairman John Gardner said in a letter to Ford, "The efforts of the maritime industry to push this Act through Congress have bordered on the scandalous." Gardner called it "a classic example of special-interest legislation generated by political contributions and a well-financed lobbying campaign."

Read any good books lately?

Let's face it. The news is dull, dull, dull. Other than Bert Lance's little fling, and sportsdom's eager anticipation of a decapitation in that Oakland - Pittsburgh football affair last Sunday, there hasn't been anything in the newspapers lately to speed up the American heart beat.

TV is even worse. Fiction is so bad they've turned to fact, or almost. Half of each, actually. Take Richard Nixon's final days, change a name here, an incident there, and give the people "the most shocking story out of Washington in modern times . . . not recommended for children."

They call them "Docu - dramas." Historians call it murder.

The viewer is led to believe that Caryl Chessman was an ego maniac who deserved to die in the electric chair if only because of his arrogance.

This week you'll get to share the agonizingly intimate details with Karen Ann Quinlan's folks, all very factual, but not quite. "Based on a true story," says the TV disclaimer. How much of it? Your guess is as good as the producer's.

The television people are not alone in this blending of a little fact, a lot of fiction, to capture the American imagination. And the American dollar.

Authors caught on to this idea some time back. Truman Capote is credited with reviving the art form. "In Cold Blood" was a shockeroo . . . "one of the nation's worst crimes as seen through the eyes of a reporter" . . . written as though the reporter had really been there, seen the whole thing. Actually, Capote only saw the jail cell where the vicious young murderers were holed up, awaiting their fate . . . and their slice of the royalties.

"They needed the money to pay legal expenses, I needed their cooperation to build the story," Capote explains. Somehow, we buy all that.

James A. Mitchener is big on epics. "Hawaii" and that sort of thing. He makes the reader believe "You Were There!" Takes you right along. Trouble is, reader never knows when he/she has been took.

"Centennial" is Mitchener's latest biggie. Topped the Best Seller list for weeks. Epic movie soon to follow, we are told. The screen writer will 'stake a few more liberties. But leave us just enough fact to convince 9th grade America that "this must have been the way it was."

Sure, you say, but Michener really is a great historian. No question about it. Great story teller, too. Leaves us ignorant masses to figure out which is which.

Colleen McCullough gives Australia the fact - and - fiction treatment in "The Thorn Birds." Having visited that wild outback, I found Colleen's description of the rugged land, the rough people, quite believeable.

Colleen also gives us a large dose of sex in "Thorn Birds" . . . Meggie crawling in and out of bed with the Catholic Bishop, that sort of thing. Having never crawled into bed with a Bishop, I cannot testify to Ms McCullough's authority in the matter. Trouble is, neither can anyone else. Take her word for it, read on through one passionate page after another.

Hollywood already has the movie rights for "Thorn." Can't wait to see what the censors do with Meggie's introduction to intercourse. Maybe they won't change a word, given today's cinematic morality.

Personally, I am more impressed with Clive Cussler's blending of fact - fiction in his latest novel. Darned little of the former, a lot of the latter. Leaves the reader little doubt that Clive is having a field day with his rationale to "RAISE THE TITANIC!"

Can't tell you whether Clive's crew gets the job done or not, and won't even tell you why they would want to. Buy the Bantam paperback ($2.25) and find out for yourself.

There is one other book of recent publication that has come my way, courtesy of my old friends at Sunset, in Menlo Park.

"Furniture Finishing & Refinishing" is the title. Sunset sends me sneak previews of these "How To" books. Looking for favorable reviews, or whatever.

"Do you have an old wooden piece of furniture waiting in your garage for a facelift?" Sunset asks in the promo piece accompanying that free copy. Yes, dear hearts, we have a garage - full, and a shed - full. A source of considerable marital discomfort, over the years.

"When are you going to start refinishing that side board my great aunt left us," asks female partner. To which I was always able to reply: "Can't do it, afraid I might ruin the precious antique finish with my poor talents."

An excuse I can use no longer. Sunset provides me with all necessary expertise . . . ." step - by - step instructions for salvaging old finishes," they assure me, and you. That's a fact. But it's mostly fiction.

Like every other docu - drama these days, a body can't tell one from the other.

". . . and one more thing — stop calling me 'MR. MONCKTON'!"

EARL WATERS

Tinkering

In epitaph to the monumental failure to enact property tax relief, Assembly Republican leader Paul Priolo declared the issue to be a problem beyond the capacity of the Legislature.

He may be right but Senate Republican leader Dennis Carpenter's view that the lawmakers tinkered instead of going directly to the property tax problem really points up the cause of the disagreements which stymied seven and a half months of efforts to give respite to the beseiged homeowners.

The legislators complained constantly of the complexity of the tax "reform" proposals but the complications were of their own making. Confronted with the pent up demands of homeowners for tax relief which have been building for a decade, the solons came to Sacramento in January determined to provide it. And, no doubt that would have done so had the state's fiscal condiction remained normal.

But Governor Jerry Brown's revelation of the "good news" that the state was looking forward to a huge treasury surplus promising to exceed $1 billion was too tempting. It became even more so as the continuously revised estimates reached upwards of $2½ billion.

This unexpected bonanza immediately set in motion any number of schemes for social engineering and tampering with the tax structures. The proponents of these ideas, perhaps believing their pet plans would not stand on their own merits, succeeded in weaving many of them into the property tax relief vehicle. It became a grab bag of "goodies", a something for everybody package.

But its downfall was that the measure had lost sight of its original objective. The amount of relief for homeowners was minimal, leaving the so-called middle class practically stranded and the "rich" completely out. After its first failure in the Senate, conferees attempted to mollify the complaints by upping the ante for the middle class. It was still far short of the homeowner relief most had expected.

It is not uncommon for attempts to be made to secure enactment of concepts, otherwise unacceptable to the majority, by attaching them to a major bill for which there is overwhelming support. But this "piggy backing" can be overdone and obviously this was the case with the property tax measure. It not only resulted in overloading a bill with propositions not directly related to the issue but far too complicated for easy understanding.

By contrast two initiatives are being circulated. Both attack the property tax problem simply and concisely. One is a bare two hundred words in length and the other is slightly more than 400 words.

The lengthier one is perhaps the simplest, confining itself solely to limiting property taxes to one per cent of the assessed values as of 1975- 76. The shorter worded one freezes assessed values as of the time of passage of the initiative and reduces property tax rates by 50 per cent. It also provides income tax credits for home renters.

If the Legislature had approached the problem in this manner, confining their efforts to the single issue of property tax relief for homeowners without any gimmickry, they would have had a bill they could have easily passed.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: We have just had another argument in what has been a going hassle for years now. My husband's business requires him to travel quite a bit by air. When he goes off he leaves me with a certain amount of money (which is usually not enough). I have asked for my own checking account, but he has this idea that as head of the household he should handle all money affairs. I don't even know what he has in the way of savings, life insurance, the amount of mortgage, or anything concerning our financial state. I'm frightened, because if something should happen to him I'd be left completely unprepared to cope. — J.H.

DEAR J.H.: Your husband may be the hosuehold head but he certainly isn't using it. No woman in this day and age should be kept in such a conditon of financial servitude.

Not only is he subjecting you to the embarrassment that must arise when the money he leaves runs out, he is positively medieval in his belief that only he can manage the hosuehold finance.

You should insist that he at the least set up a separate checking account that you can use for emergencies. And, definitely, you should be aware of the status of your holdings (in some states these would be considered community property) in case of some unfortunate accident to him.

There is a great deal of egotism involved in your husband's attitude. I don't know whether you have given him cause, but even if he continues to handle affairs you should be informed of what is happening.

Often men who act in such miserly fashion reflect a childhood of poverty or one in which they were obligated at an early age to go to work. Deprived of normal childhood pursuits, such a person becomes distrustful of others and seeks to regulate his own surroundings.

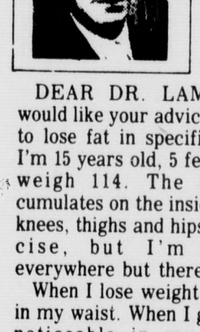
DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My wife is a marvelous cook, but she never sits down to eat. Instead, during the preparation of any meal, she constantly nibbles at the food. You can imagine the result. From a size 10 she has grown to a size 40. I'm not only concerned about her health, but, since it is necessary for me to entertain clients in my home quite often, I am somewhat embarrassed by her appearance. That may sound callous, but she is truly a very handsome woman if only she didn't carry that excess weight. I am also aware that she is very unhappy over the situation. — O.S.

DEAR O.S.: Compulsive eating is as much an indicator of inner disturbance as many other factors are. The person who constantly nibbles or overeats is compensating for some other deficiency.

The old saying that inside every fat person is a thin one screaming to get out has more relevance than mostpersons think. Obviously, no one wishes to be overweight, yet those who are apparently exercise little control over the actions that bring on the condition.

Since she is unhappy about it, it should be easy for you to openly discuss your feelings. Your concern will not only bolster your resolve but assuage any negative reactions she might have.

The initial plan should be an honest talk, consideration of a change in diet and then a seeking for the reasons behind her compulsion.



Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like your advice on how to lose fat in specific areas. I'm 15 years old, 5 feet 2, and weigh 114. The fat accumulates on the inside of my knees, thighs and hips. I exercise, but I'm losing everywhere but there.

When I lose weight I lose it in my waist. When I gain, it's noticeable in my knees. Please send me a diet or some exercises that will help, especially my knees.

DEAR READER — There is a persistent but completely wrong idea that exercises will reduce a specific area — "spot reducing." It just isn't so.

When you lose fat you lose it all over and when you gain you gain all over. Why then do you have fat knees? Because some people have more fat cells to begin with in certain body locations. It is often a familial characteristic. We see the same thing in different breeds of animals.

So you grew up with a different body plan than some others. The only way you can eliminate excess fat from your knees, thighs, and hips is to have a general weight loss and these may be the last areas to lose fat stores in your case. Exercising your legs will not help other than increasing the use of calories. You can increase or decrease the size of an arm or leg by changes in muscle size but the loss of fat is in response to the total body metabolism.

I am sending you the Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet, that you can use for a plan and you should accompany it with regular exercise, walking, swimming, dancing, whatever you enjoy. Others who want this plan can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I had a chest X ray recently which showed calcium in my aorta. What causes it and what can I do about it to keep it from getting worse? Could this cause a heart attack?

DEAR READER — The aorta is that large artery that carries oxygenated blood away from your left heart to most of your body. Branches off the aorta go to the brain, abdominal organs, arms and legs and wherever oxygenated blood is needed.

It is a very large artery and in young people is very elastic. It expands each time the left heart pumps blood into it with each heartbeat. The elasticity enables it to literally beat with each pulsation.

As you get older the wall of the aorta tends to calcify and loses its elasticity.

Often a person lives out his or her life span without this being a significant problem. Sometimes, if it becomes extensive it may cause the top blood pressure reading (systolic) to be higher than in young people. The higher levels will increase the chances of having a stroke or a heart attack.

I wouldn't be unduly alarmed about the finding but I do think you would be wise to keep your weight down, eat a diet low in fat, particularly saturated fat and cholesterol. Don't smoke cigarettes if you happen to do so. Unless your doctor finds something on your examination that would justify doing more, such as very high cholesterol levels that cannot be controlled by diet alone, these measures should be about as much as is practical to do.

Q. "HOW DOES MY VOICE GO OVER THE TELEPHONE?"
KENNETH FOSTER ALTON, IL
A. THE TELEPHONE CHANGES THE SOUND OF YOUR VOICE INTO ELECTRICAL SIGNALS, WHICH ARE CHANGED BACK INTO SOUND WAVES AT THE OTHER END OF THE LINE
DICK ROGERS
9-28

When you speak into a telephone, your voice waves strike a thin metal plate called a diaphragm and cause it to vibrate, or move back and forth very rapidly, in just the same way your voice waves are vibrating.

Behind the diaphragm is a small chamber filled with many grains of carbon. Electricity flows through the carbon grains as you speak.

The vibration of the diaphragm pushing against the carbon grains changes your voice into electrical signals that travel over the telephone wire and into the earpiece of your friend's telephone.

There the electrical signals work an electromagnet near another diaphragm in your telephone and makes it vibrate just as the diaphragm in your telephone is moving.

The vibrations produce sound waves in the earpiece like those made by your voice. And your friend hears a copy of your voice.

Opening lead — 4♠

By Oswald & James Jacoby

When today's hand was played in a recent tournament a fourth-best spade was opened at all tables, irrespective of who was declarer or whether the contract was three notrump by North or four hearts or five clubs by South.

As you can see the lead beat three notrump since spades were set up before hearts. It was the only lead to give South five clubs since he could get two immediate diamond discards.

At the one table where the contract was four hearts the contract would probably have been set by a club or diamond lead and the play after the spade lead was quite interesting.

South discarded one diamond on the queen of spades and promptly led dummy's jack of hearts. He could not afford the luxury of a second discard at that time.

West was in with the king and led a diamond. South won, entered dummy with a club, discarded his last diamond on the ace of spades, led a second trump and scored an overtrick.

Lee Harvey Oswald's mock trial a bonanza

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — What might have happened had Lee Harvey Oswald not been shot dead by night club owner Jack Ruby, if he'd actually gone on trial for the 1963 assassination of President John F. Kennedy?

ABC poses the question Friday and Sunday nights in a $2.5 million movie representing a new form of documentary drama, the "what if" docu-drama. It's "The Trial of Lee Harvey Oswald."

(In a macabre promotional caper, ABC says it's putting a questionnaire in the Oct. 1 "TV Guide" that asks viewers how they'd vote were they on the Oswald jury. Results of this thumbs-up, thumbs-down poll will be announced Oct. 14 on "Good Morning, America," ABC says.)

Friday's show recreates Kennedy's slaying and Oswald's capture in Dallas, Tex. Sunday's show stages what the trial producer Richard Freed thinks Oswald might have had, had not Ruby killed the ex-Marine.

For Freed, the two programs conclude a project he says he began in 1965, two years before a short-lived Broadway play, also called "The Trial of Lee Harvey Oswald," hit the boards.

He said he bought that play by Avram Ducovny and Leon Friedman mainly for rights to its title, but that none of his movie, written by Robert E. Thompson, draws from the stage version.

While preparing his mock "trial" of Oswald, he said, he consulted heavily with top prosecutors and criminal lawyers on how they would have handled the trial, had it ever occurred.

The idea of the movie, he added, is to show evidence in Kennedy's slaying "in a courtroom context, in an adversary context."

Volunteer Bureau Week

The Valley Community Services District has proclaimed the week of Oct. 3 to 9 Valley Volunteer Bureau Week, to mark the bureau's second anniversary of service to all Valley residents. Reading the proclamation here are Nancy Cotton, board president, and Richard Howell, board member. A reception has been scheduled Tuesday, Oct. 4 from 12 to 3 p.m. at Valley Volunteer Bureau offices for civic officials from VCSD, Pleasanton and Livermore to mark the second anniversary. Bureau offices are presently located at 287 Rose Ave. in Pleasanton and office hours are 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday. Betty Stallings is executive director of the Valley Volunteer Bureau. Valley softball buffs may find county test

HAYWARD — Valley softball buffs — especially politicians and city staffs — had better beware of the Alameda County Planning Department EIRs.

They whipped their counterparts in the Public Works Department 30 - 7 last week in the somewhat annual interdepartment softball game at Kennedy Field.

Remember: That's a softball score. Not the first quarter of a 49er game.

And now they're looking toward the West End Kids, a composite team of Pleasanton and Valley Community Services District politicians and staff. West Enders beat the Water People from Livermore and Zone 7 earlier in the week in a cliff-hanging, beer stained 13-12 drive.

They may find themselves challenged by the now notorious — and boastful — EIRs.

The interdepartment game, normally slated for seven innings or 7:30 p.m., which ever comes first, dragged on for two more.

Trailing 14-7 after the first seven rounds, the undaunted Public Works Department Wrenchmen volunteered for a masochistic two more innings.

They should have learned from the 49ers.

The games had been held as part of the annual interdepartment picnic.

They sort of ran out of gas a few years ago, and, after planning threw down the gauntlet several times, public works finally picked it up.

Planning, naturally, calls itself a "professional quality team."

Sterling performances were put in by Ben Berke with back-to-back home runs and four RBIs, Dave Carpenter, Harold Manley, Rus McKibbin, Dan Orr, Steve Richards — the team's center field "ace" — Adolph Martinelli, and Dick Sorensen.

County Planning Director Bill Fraley, suffering from a congenital back problem, was score keeper and bat person. Zoning administrator Dick Flynn allegedly managed the winning team.

Public Works Department spokesmen were unavailable for comment.

But if planning wants to play the West Enders, the two are going to have to change the rules.

The PD — PWD game is slated for seven innings.

Valley teams play until they run out of beer.

BORN LOSER

If you think things sometimes go wrong for you, you'll feel better after laughing at "The Born Loser" each morning in The Times comics.

Cheap feed source seen for cattlemen

RENO, Nev. (AP) — C.E. (Buck) Edwards, a cowboy who once roamed the plains of Nevada, says he has a way to feed cattle and other livestock more cheaply, providing more profit for ranchers and more food for people.

Hydroponics is the answer, he said, adding ranchers are going to have to consider his proposals if they want to stay in business.

"I can raise feed for $15 a ton. That's cheap when you consider the $60 to $90 ranchers are paying now for a ton of hay," said Edwards, a Visalia, Calif. resident.

He explained he is traveling Nevada, working on some land deals, trying to develop financing for his hydroponics processing plan.

Hydroponics is not new, nor it is an invention of Edwards. It is used around the world to grow just about anything faster in an ultra controlled environment.

Edwards' plan, and he claims it works, is to produce huge quantities of grass to feed stock. He estimated he could raise 20 tons of grass a day — enough to feed several thousand head of cattle — in a 125 foot by 90-foot building. He added the facility would cost about $200,000.

"When I tell ranchers in the San Joaquin Valley about this, it is so simple, they just can't believe it. They won't invest until they see a machine spitting out money. But believe me, this is the coming thing. It will pay for itself in a year.

"By using this process, ranchers in Nevada could feed and raise bigger herds on less land. Right now, cattlemen have to get permits for a lot of Bureau of Land Management land to get enough range for proper forage. This way, in a compact operation, they could feed more cattle, and use less land. That would reduce fees and labor costs. And the food is more nutritional too. Another, in the San Joaquin Valley, more land for growing 'people food' could be set aside." he said.

Edwards was born in Idaho. He describes himself as a "$100 a month cowboy" who roamed the west, riding a horse and roping cattle.

"During the war, in the far east, I saw people raising vegetables with hydroponics. I never forgot it."

Why did he leave being a cowboy, join Visalia investor Doug Lanier, and launch his new endeavor?

"I've seen people starving to death around the world. I decided to try and do something about it. Sure making so money would be nice, but I'd like to get something good started," he said.

His process, he explained, is simple, using grain seed to produce grass ready to eat in one week.

The grass is produced in large plastic trays, stacked in the production room, temperature-controlled. In a large enough room, his turnover could amount to 20 tons a day, he said.

Realtor Tex Spruiel of Livermore

Vet realtor sees fading rural scene

(This is part of a continuing series of profiles of business people who have provided the same service to the Valley for at least two decades.)

Everyone finds the Valley attractive for different reasons, according to veteran realtor Tex Spruiel who has seen and been part of the change here for the last 30 years.

Spruiel added he thought keeping a rural-urban mix in the V a lley would be difficult and perhaps impossible in future years.

"Anytime you shrink the greenbelt it hinders the community because it hurts the atmosphere," he said.

"But you don't find developers who want to leapfrog," he added, "and people (buyers) still want to be on the edge, in the open."

Spruiel came to Valley with his wife Maxine in 1943 while stationed at Camp Parks with the Navy. He decided to stay and after the war worked first in the restaurant business before starting his first real estate partnership in 1957.

The name "Tex" however he picked up after moving to Waco, Tex. at age two from his birthplace in Loco, Okla. Prior to joining the navy and seeing Northern California he worked for the Los Angeles transportation system.

In 1967 Tex and his son Daniel formed TexCo Realty, the partnership they still enjoy though they entered Red Carpet Realtors in 1968. s Spruiel said- the biggest change he has seen, aside from the increase in house prices, is that buyers now demand more from their new home and spend more time there.

"People seem to have more recreation in their homes now so they want more room in the house and on the lot," he said.

SERVING & SERVICING THE BAY AREA FOR OVER 38 YEARS

Hup-two-three-four was the order of the day for Civil Air Patrol (CAP) cadets of Squadron 156 Saturday. The cadets drilled at Livermore Airport which is their base. The drill was part of non-commissioned officer training for the cadets.

Civil Air Patrol cadets step lively in leadership training

LIVERMORE — Civil Air Patrol (CAP) cadets based at Livermore Airport were put through the paces of leadership training at their non-commissioned officer school held by local CAP Squadron 156.

Male and female cadets ranging from ages 13 to 18 participated in classroom work and drill field exercises last weekend at Livermore Airport.

Classroom subjects included, "Responsibilities of an NCO," "Methods of Teaching" and "Relationship between an NCO and an Officer."

Along with classroom work, military drill and ceremonies were taught. Specific emphasis was put on how to teach and drill a flight of cadets.

Cadet First Lieutenant John Norton explained, "We know that future cadet officers will be coming from cadets we are training today. We want them prepared for that responsibility."

Cadet officers planned and conducted the school. The aim of the school was to facilitate training for leaders and trainees.

According to Captain Terry Taylor, senior member and Deputy Commander of Cadets, "The primary purpose of this weekend training exercise is to instill leadership responsibilities in all our young cadets. These skills will be utilized by the cadets in their adult lives regardless of whether or not they elect to enter into military service."

Besides receiving special training last weekend, CAP cadets participate in formal studies at their weekly meetings. These studies include all aspects of aviation, Air Force customs and courtesies, principles of search and rescue plus flight indoctrination.

Anyone interested in the cadet program , including adults interested in the senior program, are invited to contact Captain Fred Staedel, Squadron Information Officer at 829-1212 or 846-6455. Information can also be obtained by coming to CAP weekly meetings Tuesday, 7 p.m. at Altamont Aviation building at Livermore Airport.

SP work

Workers for the Southern Pacific railroad were getting into the swing of things yesterday in an effort to replace some sunken ties and rails along Stanely Boulevard east of Pleasanton. A spokesman said the tracks were in need of repair because heavy carloads of sand and gravel from the nearby Kaiser plant slowly buried the side rail. Albert Capas marks the track while Willie Velasquez (left) and Mike Davis pound away.

House rejects federal funds for abortions

By BETTY ANNE WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House rejected Tuesday a proposal to use federal funds for abortions in cases of rape, incest or medical necessity, clearing the way for a compromise with the Senate on abortion and passage of a $60.2 billion social legislation bill.

By a vote of 252 to 164, House members rejected a resolution that would have endorsed the abortion language already agreed to by the Senate.

The lopsided defeat was far short of the two-thirds majority needed for the House to adopt the Senate's more liberal approach to abortion funding.

The House position is that federal money should be spent on abortions only when a woman's life is jeopardized by a full-term pregnancy.

House and Senate conferees are now expected to resume efforts to reach a compromise on the volatile issue.

Senate conferees had demanded the vote by the House and walked out of a conference after House members refused to agree to one. The senators maintained that their chamber had twice rejected the House position on abortion.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill had predicted that the House would not accept the Senate's language, but he also said that Senate leaders were confident that even if the language were defeated, the abortion question could be resolved within 48 hours.

The dispute by the House and Senate conferees was delaying passage of an appropriations bill for the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare. Current funding for those agencies runs out on Friday.

The defeated resolution would have instructed House conferees to abandon their proposal and agree with the Senate, paving the way for a regular House vote on the Senate language.

This vote will be used as a measure of House sentiment when the conferees meet again to seek a compromise. They may hold another session as early as Wednesday. One Senate staff person said the conferees were anxious to resume their talks.

O'Neill scheduled the vote on the Senate language over the vehement opposition of Rep. Daniel Flood, D-Pa.

FBI says crime up in SF

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Serious crimes in San Francisco rose more than 19 per cent from 1975 to 1976, figures released by the FBI showed Tuesday.

California as a whole showed a slight increase from 1,526,293 to 1,556,757 in 1976.

San Jose had a 5.86 per cent drop over the year, with Oakland down 3.89 per cent, Fresno up 9.37 per cent and Sacramento 7.19 per cent higher.

The FBI's annual uniform crime report said San Francisco had 77,284 serious crimes last year and 64,518 the previous year, up 19.79 per cent.

Murders and non-negligent manslaughter showed a five per cent drop from 1975 to 1976 in San Francisco with 138 and 131, respectively. Burglaries climbed from 17,505 to 21,992, larceny was up from 29,270 to 34,349, forcible rape up from 547 to 619 and aggravated assault up from 2,765 to 3,379.

Oakland listed 42,883 serious crimes in 1975 and 41,215 last year. Murders dropped nearly 12 per cent from 111 to 98, with burglaries down from 13,986 to 13,200, aggravated assault down from 2,288 to 2,213 and rape down from 316 to 309.

San Jose recorded 44,082 major crimes in 1975 and 41,510 in 1976, with murders down two to 37, rapes up from 234 to 296 and larceny down from 24,467 to 22,063.

Fresno had 19,681 serious crimes in 1975 and 21,526 in 1976, with murders up from 25 to 28, rapes down from 84 to 55 and larceny up from 10,642 to 12,269.

Serious crimes rose in Sacramento from 26,610 crimes in 1975 to 28,523 last year, with murders up from 42 to 52, rapes up from 155 to 192, larceny up from 12,939 to 14,070 and aggravated assault up from 1,087 to 1,368.

Berkeley showed a decline from 13,217 to 12,362 last year with slayings unchanged at 13, burglaries down from 4,328 to 3,727 and rape up from 105 to 116.

Stockton listed 12,025 crimes in 1975 and 12,487 in 1976. Murders were up from 15 to 21 and rape up from 30 to 37.

State figures for 1975 and 1976 included murder 2,209 and 2,210, rape 8,807 and 9,614 and burglaries 469,726 and 467,980.

UC regent heads probe on schools

CONCORD (AP) — William Coblentz, chairman of the University of California regents, was named Tuesday to head a three-member fact-finding team that will investigate the Mt. Diablo school district's finances.

Creation of the team was a key element in ending a 15-day teachers strike last Friday. The 2,000 teachers agreed to return to the classrooms and let a special team investigate their salary complaints.

Coblentz, a San Francisco attorney, was chosen by state schools Supt. Wilson Riles. The teachers selected Assemblyman Dan Boatwright, D-Concord, and the school district picked Ken Hall, chief deputy finance director under former Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The panel will study the school district's financial capability of meeting the teachers demand for a 13½ per cent salary increase.

SERVE QUICHE

FOR THE NEW LOW CHOLESTEROL CUISINE

"Quiche" was the name given by the French to this tart filled with a rich custard made from eggs, cream and cheese. In the Province of Lorraine they added bacon and served it as an hors d'oeuvre. Americans were quick to savor it and introduced it as a delicious main course for brunch or a light supper. In any language it has been a dish traditionally high in calories and cholesterol. Now there is a growing interest in a new cuisine that reduces both calories and cholesterol without sacrificing the pleasure of good food. This Quick Quiche made with two, two-egg-equivalent cartons of egg substitute, low-fat Mozzarella cheese, skim milk, and crisp, smoky Breakfast Strips is a gourmet dish for Sunday Brunch. It has virtually no cholesterol and only 295 calories per serving. The crust made with polyunsaturated margarine can be made in advance, filled with the crumbled Strips and grated cheese, and refrigerated to be baked just before the guests arrive.

High-Hat Popovers are another treat that can be whipped up in a wink. In fact, this Morningstar Farms recipe can be made in advance and refrigerated overnight, ready to pop in the oven to make a spectacular appearance for brunch. For a special treat serve them with fresh strawberry preserves.

Whether you are counting calories or cholesterol, Morningstar Farms Scramblers are conveniently packaged with three cartons, each containing the equivalent of two whole eggs. Dry skim milk and polyunsaturated corn oil contribute to the nutritional balance of the product as well as reducing the calories and cholesterol. Actually, Scramblers have 20 percent fewer calories per serving than a whole egg and no cholesterol, compared with 240 milligrams of cholesterol found in one egg. This convenient new egg substitute is making its appearance in the frozen food section of grocery stores across the country. Store them in the freezer at home or up to a week in your refrigerator. They'll thaw overnight in the refrigerator or in 20 to 30 minutes in a bowl of hot water. Always remember to shake the carton well before using, whether scrambled for a quick breakfast dish or in your favorite recipe. If your recipe calls for one egg, just measure out one-fourth cup.

Hi-Hat Popovers and an elegant quiche, both made with Scramblers, are the stars of this low calorie, low cholesterol brunch.

QUICK QUICHE

10 Morningstar Farms Breakfast Strips
3 cartons (1½ cups) Scramblers
1 cup shredded low-fat Mozzarella cheese
1 cup skim milk
dash pepper
10 - inch unbaked pastry shell

400 degree Oven 6 servings

Fry Breakfast Strips until crisp according to package directions. Drain and crumble. Line 10-inch quiche pan or pie pan with pastry. Arrange crumbled Strips and cheese over bottom of unbaked pastry shell. Shake carton of Scramblers before using. Combine Scramblers, milk and pepper. Pour Scramblers mixture over cheese. Bake at 400 degrees for 30 minutes or until a knife inserted 2 inches from edge comes out clean. Cool 10 minutes before serving.

HIGH-HAT POPOVERS

1 cup sifted all purpose flour
1 cup skim milk
1 carton (½ cup) Scramblers
2 tablespoons polyunsaturated oil
½ teaspoon salt

400 degree Oven 8 to 10 popovers

Coat inside surface of 5 or 6-ounce custard cups with polyunsaturated margarine; dust lightly with flour. Combine ingredients in small mixer bowl. Beat 2 minutes at medium speed. Fill custard cups ½ full. Place on baking sheet. Bake at 400 degrees oven for 40 to 45 minutes. Turn off oven. Prick popovers with point of sharp knife and leave in oven 10 minutes to dry centers.

CONFETTI SCRAMBLE

5 Morningstar Farms Breakfast Strips
polyunsaturated oil
2 cartons (1 cup) Scramblers
1 tablespoon chopppd pimiento
1 tablespoon finely chopped green pepper
1 tablpspoon polyunsaturated margarine

4 servings

Fry Breakfast Strips in oil until crisp, according to package directions. Drain and crumble. Shake cartons of Scramblers before using. Combine all ingredients except margarine, beat lightly. Heat margarine in skillet over low heat. Add Scramblers mixture. As edges set, stir occasionally from outer edge toward center until cooked to desired firmness. Serve immediately.

Relatively smog-free month in Valley noted

July was a relatively smog - free month both throughout the Bay Area and in the Livermore Valley.

The Bay Area Air Pollution Control District's report for July states "there were no excesses of state or federal standards for carbon monoxide, nitrogen dioxide or sulfur dioxide during July.

On just one day, July 29, were widespread excesses in "suspended particulates" recorded, with the Livermore stations topping the Bay Area readings on that day, the only such excess recorded at the Valley station in July.

Livermore readings also recorded seven days when oxidant readings exceeded state standards, but was topped in that category by Los Gatos with ten such days. Concord recorded six dayswith oxidants in excess of standards.

There were no days in July when this Valley's visibility was seriously impacted by smog, while Sunnyvale with 25 such days, San Jose with 14 and San Francisco with 13 days topped that list.

'Pokey Joe'

Sandra Wooldridge, a fifth grade student at Nielsen Elementary school in Dublin, displays a winning smile along with her prize-winning book, "Pokey Joe", that won a Newcott award last week. The Newcott-Caldebery annual contest is co-sponsored by Dublin and Pleasanton libraries for students in grades one through eight. Newcott awards are given for best written books; Caldebery, for best illustrated. Ye Olde Booke Shoppe in Dublin and Sage Books in Pleasanton also acted as contest sponsors. Sandra said it took her five days to write "Pokey Joe." If she doesn't become a writer, she would like to be either a ballet dancer or a jockey, she said.

VFW chair to Lindquist

PLEASANTON — Lloyd Lindquist, 4034 Suffolk Way, has been appointed to serve as vice chairman of the Veterans of Foreign Wars' National Community Activities Committee.

The committee will meet in Kansas City, Mo., next week to discuss programs and resolutions outlined by V.F.W. delegates who attended the 78th Annual V.F.W. Convention held last month in Minnesota.

In announcing the appointment, Wasylik said "Lloyd Lindquist has been active in V.F.W. matters on the local and national level and has demonstrated an unusual dedication to the preservation of the institutions which have made this country the world leader in freedom and democracy, and in establishing human dignity as the birthright of each of its individual citizens."

Fishing 'good' at two Valley lakes

Fishing is reported to be good in both local lakes operated by the East Bay Regional Park District, Shadow Cliffs and Del Valle Lake.

Shadow Cliffs is continuing its anglers' contest sponsored by Aquatic Rides Inc. Prizes are given each week for the largest of each game-fish species and the largest stringer of each species.

At Del Valle bluegill fishing still reported to be excellent with good largemouth bass fishinp also. Bluegill to eight inches long were being caught with red, grub and earth worms as well as salmon eggs and clams. Large mouth bass, including some in the 2 lb. to 3½ lb. class were also reported hitting a variety of lures and baits.

Shadow Cliffs requires the district's fishing access ticket, $3 per season or 75 cents a day.

Youth Council flea market is Saturday

DUBLIN — The "Second Annual Flea Market" will be held Oct. 1 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Shannon Community Center, 11600 Shannon Avenue, Dublin.

The Dublin Youth Council is sponsoring the event. Proceeds will go toward providing teen activities to area youths.

The last day to rent a booth will be Sept. 30. A $4 rental fee will be charged for booths. The rental fee includes a parking space plus a 10x16 foot space to sell your wares.

Applications for booth rental may be picked up at Shannon Center.

For more information call 828-7711.

Crime Prevention Week

LIVERMORE — Crime Prevention Week activities will be on the move the week of Oct. 8-15. The Alameda County Crime Prevention van will be at seven different locations during the week, displaying locks and security devices.

The Livermore Fire Department also will display household fire prevention equipment, and a fireman and a police officer will be at the van to answer questions and explain the displays.

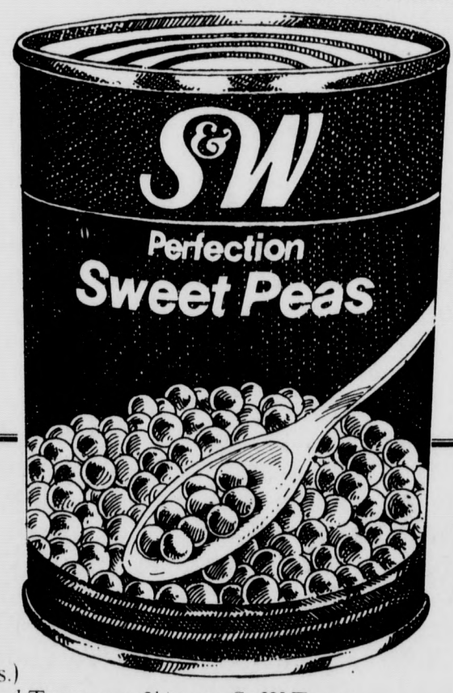
Coloring contest entries, being sponsored by the police department, can be left at the van.

The van schedule will be open from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the following locations: Granada Shopping Center, Oct. 8

S&W

Old Fangled Notion #3

S&W SWEET PEAS
The fanciest peas, perfectly oval, sweet and succulent.



Uncompromised quality.

In 1896, we gave our word that every vegetable we canned would be the finest, fanciest quality grown.

Since then, three generations of quality-conscious cooks have served our vegetables with confidence and pride.

Today, S&W is the only major company in the country that still puts out nothing but the fanciest grade of vegetables.

We've never compromised our quality. And we never will. You've got our old-fangled word on it.

S&W STRINGLESS GREEN BEANS
Tender young beans, specially selected for their delicate flavor.

S&W GOLDEN SWEET CORN

Knife & Fork Vegetable Soup

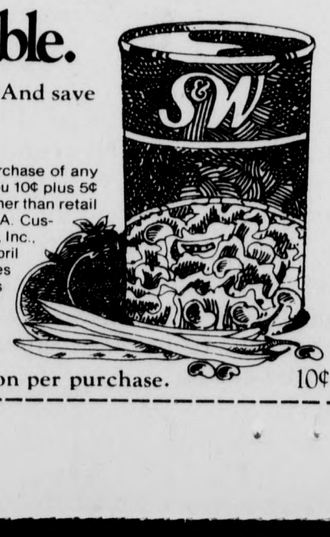
Most soups this thick and rich take hours! This one's ready in minutes: Just empty 1 lb. can each S&W Golden Corn, S&W Stringless Green Beans and S&W Sweet Peas into large soup kettle. (Include can liquids.) Add 1 pound can of S&W Stewed Tomatoes, 2½ cups S&W Tomato Juice, 1 cup raw macaroni shells (or your favorite pasta) and 12 oz. Choriza, Italian Sausage or other hot sausage, browned. Then add ½ cup red cooking wine, 1 Tbsp. dehydrated onion flakes and 2 tsp. Worchestershire sauce.

Cover and simmer 15 minutes, or until pasta is tender. Salt to taste. And serve it up to 8 hungry people with knives, forks and maybe a soup spoon.

10¢ SWNC-9287 10¢

10¢ off any S&W® vegetable.

Taste the uncompromised quality yourself. And save a dime on the purchase of any S&W Vegetable.



Mr. Grocer: as our agent, accept this coupon for 10¢ on the purchase of any S&W Vegetable. (Limit one coupon per purchase.) We will reimburse you 10¢ plus 5¢ handling for each coupon you so accept. Coupon void if redeemed by other than retail distributors, if prohibited, taxed or restricted. Offer good only in U.S.A. Customers must pay any sales tax. For redemption, mail to S&W Fine Foods, Inc., A. C. Nielsen, P.O. Box 1427, Clinton, Iowa 52732. Our offer expires April 30, 1978. Fraud clause: Any other application of this coupon constitutes fraud. Invoices proving purchase of sufficient stock to cover coupons presented for redemption must be made available upon request.

"Slim and Trim" is open to those who can't swim — or just want to keep their hair dry.

Pleasanton aquatic center offers swim lessons for family

PLEASANTON — "Join the city's wet heads," admonishes aquatic program director Dolores Bengston, as the city's Aquatic Center swim program continues through Oct. 28.

Lessons for school age children begin a new session Sept. 29.

Beginners classes are offered at 4 and 5 p.m. Advanced beginner, intermediate, and swimmer are scheduled at 4:30 p.m.

All lessons run Mondays through Fridays for two weeks at the Aquatic Center, 4455 Black Ave. Each session is one-half hour.

"Slim and Trim" and adult classes will begin a new Monday, Wednesday and Friday class session from Oct. 12 to 28.

"Slim and Trim" is offered at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m.; adult classes are scheduled at 11 a.m.

All levels of swimmers — from beginner to advanced swimmer — will be accommodated in the adult swim classes.

Adults wishing to prepare for other aquatic classes such as lifesaving or water safety instructor may ask for instruction in their particular area.

"Slim and Trim" is an exercise class in the water designed to firm and tone muscles using the constant resistance of the water as an aid. You do not have to know how to swim — or even get your hair wet — to participate.

"Swim and Stay Fit," a lap swimming program for adults, continues on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from noon to 1 p.m. Adults wishing to keep fit by swimming or exercising in the water are encouraged to participate at this time.

Call 846 - 1720 for further information.

Those interested may register on Mondays, Wednesdaysor Fridays from noon to 1 p.m.; Oct. 12 or 23 from 4 to 5:30 p.m., or on the first day of class — if there's room.

Cal High invites area to first College Faire

SAN RAMON — California High School's first College Faire night will be held Tuesday, Oct. 11 from 7:30 to 10 p.m..

Students and parents from all area high schools are invited to attend. There will be three sessions of 40 minutes each which will allow all present to get a broad picture of advanced education within the Bay Area and throughout California. Each college representative will be in a separate area and will have a presentation as well as time for questions.

Parents and students from Pleasanton and Dublin area schools are invited to attend.

The following schools will have representatives present:

Cal State University at Hayward, San Jose State University (Both will represent all schools in the Cal State system), University of California at Berkeley, University of California at Davis (Both will represent all schools in the UC system), California College of Arts and Crafts, College of Notre Dame, Academy of Art College, Heald Engineering, Holy Names, Menlo College, Mills College, St. Mary's, University of San Francisco, Whitworth College of Spokane, Wash., Linfield College of McMinnville, Oregon, Pepperdine College of Malibu, Condie College, Heald Business College, Diable Valley College, and representatives of the U.S. Marine Corps, Air Force, Army and Navy.

San Ramon Valley schools have ROP program openings

DANVILLE — There are two Regional Occupational Programs (ROP) with openings, according to Ron Loos, San Ramon Valley Unified School District vocational education coordinator.

Both real estate secretary classes and the word processing, advanced office skills course are open to adults 16 years and over. The courses are held at San Ramon High School, with the real estate course offered from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. and word processing from 8 a.m. to 11 a.m.

The classes are designed to give students job entry skills and are open for enrollment at any time. Further information can be obtained by calling Loos at 837-1511, or by calling the registrar's office for ROP at 944-3465.

The real estate course introduces students to skills needed to meet the public, prepare documents, property management, accounting, escrow, real estate law and other skills needed for secretarial work in a real estate office.

The word processing class is designed to prepare students for entry-level jobs as a word processing operator or a clerk-typist. Classroom instruction includes Memory, Mag Card II and Vydec training.

Monte Vista High announces blood drive

Richard Matherson of Concord inspects the latest lush crop — grown in just a week — of barley grass raised in his environmental growth chamber. He says such 'grass machines' can help feed millions in the future. By Dan Rosenstrauch

Future food source seen in amazing 'grass machine'

By JACK IVERS
Times Staff Writer

CONCORD — Richard Matherson put a pound of barley grass seed into his environmental growth chamber a week ago.

Today he harvested six pounds of seven-inch tall grass grown without soil or sunlight.

Matherson's "grass machine" has the ability to produce massive amounts of food anywhere it is installed, including drought areas, the Arctic or even on a space station circling Earth.

The machine provides a means for hydroponic growth, growing plants in a solution of nutrients and water, without soil.

Matherson, a stocky, red haired Scotsman with a no - nonsense manner, developed the chamber about two years ago, after a lifetime of research and development of inventions in the area of human nutrition.

Although the grasses now grown in the chamber are intended for use as animal feed, Matherson believes he will be producing human food within six months.

The grass in the machine is held together in shallow trays by a thick network of roots. When a farmer takes the grass out for feed, the contents of the entire tray can be fed to the animals.

This modified farm is a molded fiberglass chamber that controls light, water, humidity, temperature, nutrients and everything else the plant needs to grow at the phenomenal rate of one inch daily.

Plastic trays containing seed are moved through the chamber in sequence, so some are ready for harvest every day.

The machine, Matherson says, is the wave of the future, making it possible to feed millions at a lower cost and with much less energy consumption.

Rising costs of land, labor, equipment and taxes are driving many smaller farmers off the land, he says. It's become too expensive in some areas to use land to grow food.

His machine could provide the solution to that problem, he believes.

His largest machine — eight feet square and four feet wide — has a yield equal to 32 acres of farmland.

That's enough grass, he says, to feed 10,000 cattle, with the cost dropping from about $3 to $1 per head.

Or the machine could grow 40,000 coleus plants a week for a nursery, he says.

Hydroponic growth is nothing new, Matherson points out. First experiments were carried out as far back as 1699, and during World War II the U.S. Army produced more than four million pounds of vegetables annually.

Until recently, hydroponics has been too expensive to carry out on a large-scale, commercial basis.

But recent innovations, including many of Matherson's, have allowed development of the grass machine, he says. It is the first that will consistently mass - produce large quantities of grass from seed in such a short period.

"Three years ago, people would have called me a nut if I had told them I could decrease the time of the food process."

CC college district bargaining bogs down

Faculty members of the Contra Costa Community College District have directed officers of the United Faculty organization to proceed to impasse, following rejection last week of the district's alleged "final offer."

The vote was 179-0 with one abstention.

United Faculty, with 450 members, is the recognized bargaining agent for teachers, counselors, and librarians at Contra Costa, Diablo Valley and Los Medanos colleges.

According to United Faculty, the district has offered a 5.5 per cent salary increase plus continuance of fringe benefits for regular instructors. In addition, the offer reportedly includes either an extra increment for experience for long-time teachers or a 5.5 per cent increase in the hourly rate for part-time members.

UF President Bob Flanagan sees this as a way of "pitting senior faculty against younger part-time ones, a heartless tactic designed to split our ranks."

One part-time teacher told Flanagan, "The district is trying to get you to cut us loose. Don't do it, we need you to support us."

The United Faculty asked originally for a salary increase of 10.5 per cent.

Flanagan added that the district has refused to negotiate in good faith on other non-economic elements

Huge PG&E power plant proposed in CCC

Lesher News Bureau

SAN FRANCISCO — Pacific Gas and Electric Co. has announced plans to build a multi-million dollar power gnerating plant next to its present facility near Pittsburg.

At a planned gnerating capacity of 1.6 million kilowatts per day, the plant would be nearly as large as the 2 million kilowatt facility that presently exists at Pittsburg, said PG&E spokesman Kit Newton.

He said the utility was now preparing a "notice of intention" to submit to the state Energy Commission for consideration.

If the comission approves that notice, the plans will undergo a total of 36 months of public hearings, during which comments would be solicited from local agencies such as the Contra Costa Planning Department and the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District.

Newton said the power plant would be a combined cycle plant, using combustion and steam turbines, the first of its kind in the PG&E system.

There are only a few other such plants operating in the country now, he said.

The combined turbines would recycle waste heat to generate more electricity than is available through conventional processes, he said.

If approved, the project is expected to provide approximately 600 jobs during the peak of construction and 50 permanent jobs when completed.

Plans call for it to be build in four phases, with different portioos of the plant slated to be in commercial operation each year from 1980 through 1983.

"It's a little early to put a definitive price on the project," said Newton, "but we're talking about several hundred million dollars."

Power from the plant isn't aimed at one particular area, said Newton, but would be tied into PG&E's interconnecting system.

Soviets' surprise offer

Nix nuclear underground testing

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Soviet Union, in a surprise move, offered Tuesday to join with the United States and Britain in a suspension of all underground nuclear weapons tests for an unspecified period.

"The prohibition of all nuclear weapon tests would be a major step conducive to lessening the threat of nuclear war and deepening detente," Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko told the U.N. General Assembly.

Negotiations on a comprehensive test ban agreement, including explosions for such peaceful purposes as river diversions, are scheduled for Geneva next week.

U.S. officials were not notified in advance of the Soviet gesture. To them it appeared to represent serious intent to complete a weapons test ban.

Beyond that, the Russians did not condition their offer to reach an agreement on compliance by China and France, the two other major nuclear powers. In the past Moscow has said a testing agreement must have global application in order to be meaningful.

He suggested with evident sarcasm that "those who clamor for 'human rights' could best apply their efforts" in southern Africa.

"But for some reason or other," Gromyko said, "they shut their eyes to the intolerable plight of millions of people."

And, in another gibe at President Carter, who has charged the Soviet Union with violating elemental human rights, Gromyko declared:

"Any attempts at sermonizing us or, still worse, at interfering in our internal affairs under contrived pretexts, have encountered and will encourage a resolute rebuff."

Gromyko also took issue with the Carter Administration in the arms field. Noting the President's proposal earlier in the year to the Russians to make deep cuts in existing U.S. and Soviet weapons stockpiles, he asked:

"Can one really propose with one hand various 'drastic reductions' while with the other authorize the development of new and, bluntly speaking, merciless types of weapons such as the neutron bomb?"

Gromyko derided the suggestion that the bomb, which Carter has authorized, is somehow more humane than other nuclear weapons because it would not, over a large area, level buildings and cause other physical havoc.

Enrollment in private schools up

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Private school enrollment in California edged upward again last year as public school enrollment declined, state officials reported Tuesday.

Enrollment in 2,814 private schools totaled 433,782 in 1976- 77, an increase of 12,135 or 2.9 per cent from the previous year, said the state Department of Education.

At the same time, public school enrollment was 4,380,400, a drop of 39,171 or 0.9 per cent from 1975-76.

In part, the two figures are related. Private schools are believed to be gaining from children who leave public schools because their parents dislike an integration program or the school system in general.

But officials explaining the long-term decline in public school enrollment give greater weight to a slowing in migration to California and a drop in the birth rate.

Of the private school enrollment, 337,314 students were attending church-affiliated schools, an increase of 6,303. Those schools had shown an enrollment decline of more than 3,000 in the previous year.

During 1976-77, 179 private schools closed down while 235 new ones opened, the report said.

'Spirit of Nashville'

Historic flight on water

By RICHARD H. LOWE
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Inspired by Charles Lindbergh and amazed no one had made the nautical equivalent of the Lone Eagle's historic New York to Paris voyage, Allen Cargile decided to pilot a single-engine boat across the Atlantic Ocean.

"This was the 50th anniversary of Lindbergh's flight to Paris," Cargile, a Nashville boatbuilder, said in an interview. "My goodness, he did it in a single-engine plane so I figured I could do it in a single - engine boat."

The "Spirit of Nashville" left New York July 16 with a crew of four — Lindbergh, of course, was alone — but a freak storm forced it to dock in Newfoundland and one member disembarked. The 30-foot cabin cruiser, propelled by a 130 - horsepower engine, braved another storm and bone-chilling temperatures and arrived in Paris Aug. 16, 4,500 nautical miles from the start.

"It didn't sputter once — 750 hours of humming," Cargile said. "The engine seemed to be saying, 'Don't worry, you do your part with the storm and I'll get you there.'"

Cargile said the craft was the smallest single-engine boat to cross the Atlantic without a sail.

He said his crew, Ed Gillespie and Bill Flanagan, stayed in good spirits despite close, leaking quarters. "Each member volunteered to cook the meals and take the watches," Cargile said. "We worked together to conquer the elements."

Hamburger, steak and chicken stored in two freezers were cooked in a microwave oven. Water, 90 gallons of it, was stored in jerry cans so the crew could keep track of consumption.

"We ate all we wanted, but stayed trim because of the 15- degree roll and the constant wracking of trying to stay in bunks," Cargile said.

The crew took shorts, khakis and jeans because the boat was to take the warm Gulf Stream up the Great Circle that curves into the English Channel. The two-day layover in Newfoundland forced the boat into colder seas, however, where temperatures dropped into the 40s.

Water couldn't drain through the bilge because of the fuel tanks, and the cabin was soggy most of the voyage. "We all had wet feet most of the time," Cargile said. "We all had about an eighth of an inch of dead skin on our feet that mildewed off."

The skipper said the trip proved he wasn't as crazy as people thought.

"If you sit down and calculate the data and go to the trouble to load everything on board to check it, you can see it could be done. It was a simple thing that was laid out before me and I wondered why someone else hadn't done it."

CC child health board seeks professional aides

MARTINEZ — The Contra Costa County Child Health and Disability Prevention Advisory Board has openings for four professionals in the educational or medical fields.

Oct. 7 is the filing deadline. Applicants should get an application form from the Child Health and Disability Prevention Program office, 702 Main St, Martinez , 372-2685.

Compensation includes actual expenses incurred when performing board functions, including transportation and child care.

The applicants should be persons who provide health care services or be representatives of an educational agency responsible for health services specifically for children.

The duties are to bring continuing health care services to all children from birth through six years of age and all Medi-Cal eligible children through 21 years of age.

Openings on this board were announced earlier this month. We have received enough applications for the parent category on the board but need applications from health professionals and educators.

Dr. Maxine Sehring, program director, notes, "We hear a lot about the need to improve our state and ederal health systems. This is a perfect way to get involved in making policy reccommendations to the state on ,important health issues."

Vance's banking practices backed by other financiers

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Officers of three banks that made personal loans to Bert Lance after he placed depositors' money from his own banks in interest-free accounts with them urged Congress today not to restrict such practices.

"I believe it would be a mistake to hamper the operation of the correspondent banking system of this country, which serves a legitimate and vital purpose," John F. McGillicuddy, president of Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. of New York, told the Senate Banking Committee.

Similar views were expressed by Richard L. Thomas, president of the First National Bank of Chicago, and Donald C. Platten, chairman of Chemical Bank of New York. The panel is considering changes in banking laws in the wake of revelations of Lance's past financial dealings.

Lance, a former Georgia banker, resigned last Wednesday as director of the Office of Management and Budget, which oversees spending by federal agencies.

Correspondent accounts are interest-free balances maintained by small banks with larger banks in return for specialized banking services.

Banks controlled by Lance had accounts of up to $1.12 million in Manufacturers Hanover, $250,000 in First National Bank and $224,000 in Chemical Bank. Lance received loans of $2.6 million, $3.4 million and $150,000, respectively, from the three banks.

Officers of the banks denied giving preferential lending treatment to officers of banks that have established correspondent accounts.

"One of the most damaging impressions which may have been given to the public in recent weeks is that bankers commonly engage in practices which provide to highly placed officers privileges which ordinary citizens cannot obtain," McGillicuddy said. "I do not believe that."

On Monday, the banking committee received the results of a survey showing that nearly two-thirds of the banks examined allowed interest-free overdrafts by bank directors and other insiders — one of the practices for which Lance's First National Bank of Calhoun, Ga., was criticized by federal bank examiners.

SAN JOSE — Al Attles is in the trenches.

Enemy shells have twice exploded at the edge of his fox hole. Yet, battle fatigue hasn't set in. It wouldn't make a difference if it did.

For the burden of combat is on the shoulders of everyone in the National Basketball Association, and the war may never end.

Jamaal Wilkes has eased on down the road to Los Angeles and Gus Williams is casting his meagerly baited hook into the stream populated by singularly disinterested NBA general managers and owners.

Al Attles

It plainly irks the Golden State Warriors' head coach, whose virtues have been patience and a knack for giving even the most maverick player the benefit of the doubt. But Attles is no dummy. You can't fight city hall.

"That's the way its gonna be from now on. It's gonna happen to everybody in the league, not just the Warriors," he said between Golden State's two-a-day workouts at San Jose City College recently.

It plainly irks the Golden State Warriors' head coach, whose virtues have been patience and a knack for giving even the most maverick player the benefit of the doubt. But Attles is no dummy. You can't fight city hall.

"That's the way its gonna be from now on. It's gonna happen to everybody in the league, not just the Warriors," he said between Golden State's two-a-day workouts at San Jose City College recently.

"I can't be concerned with people who aren't here," Attles, who's team has lost the two free agents to the new, more lenient, NBA freedom-of-ovement agreement and Dwight Davis and Derek Dickey — again — to injuries, said. "They have a perfect right to hold out, if they're injured, what can we do about it?"

If the free agent market will prosper after the low-yield compensation (a first round draft pick and $250,000) NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien awarded the Warriors when Wilkes opted for the Big Orange, then its stock will go through the roof in 1980 — when players will be able to move from team-to-team with their new club not required to compensate the original team at all.

Attles believes the Player's Association held out for such conditions to make up for the end of the old NBA vs. American Basketball Association talent wars. The owners capitulated in the face of anti-trust suits.

"When we don't have compensation," says Attles, "the vets will be getting long term contracts or moving around all the time.

"Athletes are different," he continued. "Normally, people don't like to move. If you've got a job making $30,000, you're not going to move 3000 miles just to make $35,000. But for a difference of $100,000 — you'd go."

Attles added sardonically, "With a $100,000 raise you don't have to like Buffalo, you can buy a stove, a heater, a fur coat."

Unreasoning owners will always be a problem. The erstwhile "Destroyer" thinks a dominating force, such as Laker center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar could drive the bidding for his services past $1 million per season.

"Somebody's always going to be willing to pay a guy like that whatever he wants.

Attles doesn't begrudge the players their outlandish salaries, though he was paid comparatively little in a decade as a Warrior guard.

"I just wish they'd say, 'I'm goin' because of the money.' I don't believe it when a guy says he likes the city. The number one consideration is always money and the last is what they always say about wanting to go to a winner," he said. "You learn that, I don't care who they are."

The current case-in-point is Williams, the one-time University of Southern California star, who has met with terribly limited success in the NBA. A second-round draft choice, Williams has averaged 10.5 points per game for the Warriors, but has never been a contributing factor to the fluid, precision movement Golden State needs to win.

"You have to test the water," said Attles of the free agents. "If I'm Jamaal Wilkes, I'm going to find I'm worth a lot more than Gus Williams (who was "freed" from a $175,000 per year contract on a technicalilty earlier this month)."

It's apparent that Attles is not pained to see Gus go, saying, "I think it's some indication of his value that no team has picked him up yet."

Attles doesn't blame Williams entirely, he points to agent Howard Slusher, who represents the slender back court player.

"He's got about 10 or 11 guys in the football league, he's telling the same type of things," Attles said, disgustedly. According to some reports, the number may be more like 50, including New England's celebrated walk-outs Leon Gray and John Hannah.

The latter pair walked out of training camp a week before the regular season, while under contract, the ire of National Football League owners, who have already branded Slusher as the most despised of the 10-per centers.

"Slusher's disease" is the label tagged on the actions of Gray and Hannah. "My problem in talking about Slusher is that I get so off-color, you can't print it," said Tim Temerario, a Washington Redskins' official.

Attles, too, has some thoughts on the subject.

"Sooner or later," he says, "the players are going to say, 'We tried it your way, now we're going to do it my way.'"

It could be too late for Williams.

"The longer a guy like Gus Williams stays out of camp, the harder its going to be for him to make this ballclub," Attles said flatly.

"Every year, it seems we have a whole new attitude. Now we've got a couple of guys who'll be earning comparatively little money — if they make the team," he explained. "They've got more drive than the guys who came out of college with $100,000 contracts.

Glads blow advantage

SAN FRANCISCO — City College of San Francisco's soccer team was forced to play most of its game with Chabot College with only ten men on the field, but the Rams overcame that disadvantage to shock the visiting Gladiators, 2-1, in Balboa Park yesterday.

Chabot coach John Shaw limited his post-game comments to a single sentence: "It was a totally disgusting performance."

Or, as a CCSF player shouted from the bench as the final gun went off, "I can't believe it. You guys should be ashamed of yourselves if you couldn't even beat a team that was one man short."

Despite the dismal outcome, the contest started out brightly for Chabot. The offense looked especially sharp, and a number of good shots on goal went just wide or were saved. The Gladiators utilized Jeff Mulson's fine speed at left wing to keep themselves in good attacking position.

With around 15 minutes left in the half, Mulson booted a centering shot on a corner kick which ended up right in fron of the goal. Helder Serra then guided the ball in from almost point-blank range to give Chabot a 1-0 lead.

Shortly after that CCSF's Adolfo Anguiano colided with a Chabot player. A short scuffle ensued, during which Anguiano assumed an almost-comical boxing stance and offered to take on what seemed to be the entire Chabot team.

After a brief consultation, the officials decided Anguiano's action called for a red card, which not only meant his ejection from the game but also left CCSF one player short for the rest of the game. That, combined with indications that the Chabot offense would break the game open any minute, made it appear that the Glads would easily rack up their second Golden Gate Conference victory in two games.

Shortly after Anguiano's ejection, the Ram attack began to show some life for the first time in the game. CCSF caught Chabot napping and the result was a goal by Jerry Terran off a Ram breakaway. The Glads almost recovered in time to thwart the drive, but confusion between Chabot goalie Pete Howard and his defensive mates resulted in an almost open goal, and Terran's rather weak shot dribbled into the cage.

The score stayed tied at 1-1 through the rest of the period, and by halftime San Francisco had made enough of a comeback to surpass Chabot in shots on goal, 13-12.

The second half had barely begun when the Rams struck again. CCSF's Gustavo Casco had the ball ahead of him on a breakaway, with only Howard between himself and the goal. However, the ball seemed too far ahead of Casco for him to track down, so Howard came out of the cage to kick it aside.

Howard ended up missing the ball completely and was still sprawled on the ground whn Casco booted the ball into the empty cage.

Chabot came close to scoring on numerous occasions during the remainder of the game. The Gladiators racked up 14 shots on goal for the second half, compared to only six for CCSF, but were unable to score.

A number of good offensive setups were wasted when Chabot players made wild shots, and those that were kicked accurately were stopped by San Francisco goalie Peter Joost. Joost was credited with five saves in the scond half, most of them on hard attempts.

CCSF not only won the game, but also ended Chabot's string of five consecutive shutouts against junior college competition. Only defending University Division champion University of San Francisco had been able to break the Glads' defense.

Chabot resumes GGC play this Friday, when it travels to Redwood City to meet Canada College in a 3:15 p.m. contest.

Phillies, Bowa exult

Larry Bowa of the Philadelphia Phillies gets champagne bath from teammates in Chicago, Tuesday, after clinching the National League Eastern Division title with a 15-9 win over the Chicago Cubs.

Cowboy spikers stomp

Livermore rolled to an impressive two-game victory over host Monte Vista, 15-10 and 15-1, to highlight East Bay Athletic League volleyball action last night.

In another game, San Ramon came from behind to defeat California High, 13-15, 15-4, 15-12.

Livermore, on the other hand, got strong serving throughout the evening. Top Poke server was Donna DiGrazia, who put together strings of four and five points to break open an otherwise-close first game.

DiGrazia's teammate, Liz Trias, served the last four points of the first game, which was probably made close only by the fact that Livermore coach Sandy Holtz elected to play mostly second-string players.

Monte Vista's only bright point in the match came at the beginning of the first game, when the Mustangs jumped to a 4-0 lead. But after that, it was nothing but problems.

"We made some bad mistakes," said Ladouceur. "In the second game we just fell apart."

The Cal-SAn Ramon contest was tied 12-12 in the deciding third game before The Wolves took three straight serves to win it.

Cal's first game win was sparked by Claire Hollcraft's strong serves. In the second game, however, the Grizzlies were less fortunate.

"The second game was really dead for us," said Cal coach Sue Goddard. "We couldn't seem to serve well."

San Ramon had one of its best offensive games of the year in the third game. The Wolves' hard, accurate spikes were the main factor in the decider.

Also doing a good job for San Ramon was Linda Colbrandt, who served 12 straight points in the second game.

Cal is now 0-2 in EBAL play, while San Ramon kept its league mark spotless at 2-0.

EBAL tennis is normal

As Foothill High coach Gary Poulos said of his team's tennis match with powerful Monte Vista High yesterday, "There were no surprises."

The same can be said for the rest of the East Bay Athletic League tennis matches yesterday, with the exception of a gutty Granada team losing to San Ramon, 4-3.

Other contests saw Livermore remain undefeated with a 7-0 blanking of California, Amador Valley stopped Dublin 5-2 and Monte Vista shut out Foothill 7-0.

The most competitive match of the day saw the Wolves get a win from fifth singles player Doug Podkins to key their 4-3 triumph.

Podkins stopped Ted Chun 6-1, 7-6 (5-1). The Mats received strong efforts from number one singles man Murray Dean, who beat Geoff Blake 6-2, 6-4, and Lino Neri , who topped fourth-singles player Pete Anderson 4-6, 6-1, 6-1.

Mike Knell also played well for Granada, recording a 6-1, 6-3 win over Jeff Bitzer.

Foothill's second doubles team of Rick Gaisser and John Dewitt won the set of the day against Monte Vista, a 6-3 win over the team of Roger Crawford and Randy Woods. However, Woods and Crawford rallied back to take the next two sets 7-5 and 6-3.

Amador rallied behind the flawless play of Matt Anger to drub Dublin in a match that featured all two-setters.

Anger blanked Kirk Chan 6-0, 6-0, while Dean Copeman whipped Steve Ringle 6-1, 6-4.

Dublin's Dan Russell topped Dave Reineking 6-3, 6-3, while Steve Cameron's win for Dublin in the fourth-singles spot over Darin Plott , 6-4, 6-4, made things iteresting.

Scott Perry of Amador topped Gary Reshes 6-2, 6-3 in the final singles match.

Mark Schellman and Mike Rennels of Amador beat Dublin's John Amador and Joel Kallman, 6-1, 6-0 in the first doubles contest, while David Liske and Bill Rodgers of Amador took Troy Williams and Paul Kobar 6-4, 6-0.

Livermore's 7-0 win over California set up their showdown with also-unbeaten and highly-regarded Monte Vista.

Rene Meyer and Ken Kemp won the first doubles match over Ken Knop and Mike Dykes 6-1, 6-0, while Tom Niven and Doug Lim bested Paul Schuller and Sam Byars 6-0, 6-0.

'Quakes tilt

Santa Clara University Broncos will host the San Jose Earthquakes on Saturday, Oct. 8, at 7:30 p.m. in buck Shaw Stadium. The game is an annual benefit for the university soccer program.

The Quakes who have won the last two meetings between the teams by narow margins of 3-2 and 2-1, will have several of the NASL's top players on the roster.

Solomon posts opening win

SAN FRANCISCO — Fifth-seeded Harold Solomon of Silver Springs, Maryland, held off John Yuill of South Africa 7-6 (8-6), 6-1 in first-round action of the Transamerican Open Tennis Championships last night at the Cow Palace.

Solomon went to a tie-breaker in the first set to topple the unranked South African.

In another important match yesterday, eighth-ranked John Alexander of Australia was upset by surprising Butch Walts of Atherton in another tie-breaker, 7-5, 7-6 (7-5).

Other first-round matches saw sixth-seeded Stan Smith roll over Nick Savino of Los Altos Hills, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3, and seventh-seeded Phil Dent of Australia edged past Toronto's Greg Halder, 2-6, 6-3, 6-2.

Red Sox Sweep, but Yanks win

BOSTON — Veteran Luis Tiant pitched seven scoreless innings as the Boston Red Sox defeated Toronto 5-1 Tuesday night, completing a sweep of a doubleheader and keeping alive their slim pennant hopes in the American League East.

The Red Sox won the first game 6-5, scoring five runs in the first inning. Ace reliever Bill Campbell earned his 30th and 31st saves of the season in the doubleheader as Boston bossted its September record to 20-7.

Tiant, 12-8, blanked the Blue Jays on four hits before giving way to Bob Stanley in the eighth. Stanley was tagged for a homer by Roy Howell, his ninth, a single by Sam Ewing and a double by Ron Fairly.

Campbell then made his 68th appearance of the season. The $1 million right-hander walked Otto Velez, filling the bases, then struck out pinch-batter Doug Ault and got Rick Cerone to ground into a fielder's choice, ending the inning.

Toronto starter Dave Lemanczyk, 12-16, was tagged for 11 hits and five runs in less than six innings.

Carl Yastrzemski became the third Red Sox' player to drive in 100 runs this year, while George Scott had one RBI and scored twice.

NEW YORK — Thurman Munson opened the ninth inning with a single and later raced home on reliever Jim Bibby's third wild pitch in three innings, giving the New York Yankees a 2-1 victory over the Cleveland Indians Tuesday night.

The triumph reduced the Yanks' magic number for clinching the American League East pennant to three.

With five games remaining in the regular season, the Yankees have a three-game lead over Boston, which won a doubleheader from Toronto.

Munson's single was the only hit off Bibby, 12-13. He took second on a wild pitch with Reggie Jackson at bat. Jackson then was intentionally walked, and Lou Piniella sacrificed.

Relief ace Sparky Lyle, 13-5, who allowed the Indians to tie the score in the eighth on pinch-hitter Ron Pruitt's single, was the winner.

Storen blasts former boss Turner

ATLANTA — Mike Storen, fired Tuesday as president of the Atlanta Hawks by owner Ted Turner, blasted Turner as a "great salesman" who had sold him on the idea that he would run the team when, in fact, he never had that authority.

Storen, 42, commented shortly after Turner announced his ouster as president and general manager of the hapless Hawks. He had headed the National Basketball Association club only nine months.

"Ted Turner is a great salesman," Storen said. "He sold me on the idea that I would have the authority to run the Hawks' team. I have never, in fact, had that authority."

The flamboyant Turner, who also owns the Atlanta Braves' baseball team and recently won the America's Cup yacht race, said Storen was fired over disagreements.

"There were a lot of things we disagreed on — that's the primary reason and that's really all I have to say," Turner said in a news conference.

He said Hawks board member Mike Gearon would serve without pay "to assist in any way he can to help the team." Turner also named Coach Hubie Brown as director of player personnel.

No successor to Storen was immediately named.

The firing ended two days of rumors about the dismissal of Storen, once commissioner of the now defunct American Basketball Association and former general manager of the Kentucky Colonels and Indiana Pacers of the ABA.

The ousted president also said he had had conflicts with Brown. "From Jan. 3 when I came here until last Saturday, I have never made one proposal for a trade that was agreeable to Hubie Brown," he said.

He said the latest in a series of conflicts with Brown came in the signing of Rich Laurel, Portland's No. 1 draft choice who had been expected to sign a contract with the cellar-dwelling Hawks.

Storen said he had negotiated a trade with the Portland Trail Blazers and a contract for Laurel that both were to go into effect Saturday with Turner's approval.

The trade would have given the Trail Blazers a secondround draft choice from the Hawks in 1979 and 1980, Storen said.

He said he outlined the terms with Turner, who then took Laurel to dinner Friday night and told Storen to "go ahead with the deal."

But on Saturday, Storen said he got a telephone call from Turner who told him to call the deal off.

"I told him I wouldn't. I went to his office. He told me again to call the deal off," said Storen. "I told him I was committed to it. He told me he would stand by the deal but that was the last deal I would make for the Atlanta Hawks. He told me to clear out my desk and that I was fired."

Houston nabs Flecto award

Guy Houston of San Ramon High School is this week's winner of the Flecto Contra Costa County Prep of the week award.

Houston, a 6-1, 190 pound senior, threw for 329 yards on 15 of 29 passes as the Wolves romped over Alhambra 59-6 last week. He had four touchdown passes and threw for fiive extra-point conversions. The quarterback contributed to 46 of the Wolves' total points.

Alameda County's winner of Mike Cornell of Mission San Jose High School. The 6-1, 185 pound running back ran for 347 yards in 28 carries as Mission San Jose romped over Castro Valley, 34-14.

The senior scored five touchdowns on runs of 61, 50, 39, nine and two yards.

Chabot V-ballers take San Mateo

SAN MATEO — Chabot College's women's volleyball team dropped a close five-game match to San Mateo college here last night, but Gladiator coach Lois Machado had nothing but praise for her team.

"Even though we lost, this was really a turning point," said Machado. "This was the best we'd played all year."

San Mateo easily took the first game, 15-6, but Chabot came charging back to win the second, 15-3. Despite the Glads' impressive second game win, San Mateo looked like it had all but clinched the match when it easily won the third game to take a 2-1 advantage.

Clutch blocking by Kim Libert and outstanding serving by Debbie Oxsen, both Amador Valley graduates, gave Chabot a new lease on life. With the Glads trailing 13-12, Oxsen served three points in a row, including an ace, to send the contest into a fifth game.

"Those kids from Amador made the difference," said Machado. "They're used to playing in situations where it really counts. They just don't choke when things get tough."

Machado praised Oxsen for her outstanding defensive play as well as for her serves.

"The last game we really should have won," commented Machado. "But I have to hand it to San Mateo — they're real scrappers."

Sooners tops by a hair

NORMAN, Okla. — The Oklahoma Sooners moved back into the No. 1 ranking this week, but Coach Barry Switzer says the polls are not really meaningful this early since they bounce around like an Oklahoma pitchout.

"I'm not concerned about those polls right now. They're a little premature at this stage of the game," he said Tuesday.

"I wish it were nine weeks from today. Those polls bounce around like the little white ball, or, maybe I should say, like our pitchouts do."

The Sooners had carried the preseason No. 1 ranking into their opener with Vanderbilt, but then lost it to Michigan when they fumbled their way to a 25-23 victory.

They rebounded the next week, though, to whip Utah 62- 24, and moved into third just ahead of fourth-place Ohio State.

That set up last Saturday's game, the first meeting ever between the college football powers. The Sooners roared to a 20-0 lead, lost that when quarterback Thomas Lott was injured and then came from behind to win on an field goal by Uwe von Schamann with three seconds left.

The victory moved the Sooners ahead of Southern California, a 51-0 winner over Texas Christian. Michigan, which held the No. 1 spot for two weeks over Wolverine Coach Bo Schembechler's objections, dropped to third after edging Navy, 14-7.

Schembechler had said last week that Michigan did not deserve to be ranked No. 1.

Von Schamann said he expected the Sooners to be No. 1 if Michigan had trouble with Navy.

"Before the game, I thought if we win, and Michigan wins big, then we'll be No. 2," von Schamann said. "But Michigan only won by one touchdown. Its a great feeling, but now we'll just have to keep it up."

Senior quarterback Dean Blevins was at the helm in the fourth quarter when Oklahoma drove for Elvis Peacock's touchdown that made it a 28-26 game, and then guided the Sooners into von Schamann's field goal range as time was running out.

Redskin fans chide Kilmer

WASHINGTON — Early in the second half against the Atlanta Falcons the Washington fans renewed their annual ritual of calling for the removal of quarterback Bill Kilmer. They wanted Joe Theismann.

It's not an usual cry in Kennedy Stadium, especially since the Redskins' offensive punch has been about as explosive as a kid's popgun — only three touchdowns in two National Football League games for a total of 27 points and a 1-1 record. Kilmer tossed up two interceptions in the fourth quarter of the 10-6 squeaker over the Falcons.

"Billy Kilmer did not play a poor game," said Coach George Allen in a post-mortem on Sunday's game. "He had dropped passes, penalties, the protection fell down. He could easily have gone in at halftime with 1.4 points."

Much of Allen's remarks would fall on the deaf ears of fans who have not taken Kilmer into their hearts since the 16-year veteran arrived here in 1971 in Allen's first major trade as a Redskin.

Kilmer replaced the hometown hero, Sonny Jurgensen, first when Jurgensen was injured and then when he was sent into retirement by the Redskins. Kilmer held onto the No. 1 position even after a much younger, more mobile Theismann moved from the No. 3 spot to the backup position.

The 38-year-old Kilmer has suffered both physical and mental injury in Washington. After the last home game in 1976 Kilmer vowed he would never again play for the Redskins because of the boos he received from the fans, the press — but he later relented.

In training camp, Kilmer said the memory of last season had been erased from his mind. He was only concerned with his health, which hasn't been the best. He has visibly limped with a chronically sore knee and two weeks suffered from a sore back which he said had healed.

During the current controversy, Kilmer has not been talking, declining all requests for interviews. Theismann has been talking, stirring up the debate.

Theismann told some 200 Redskins fans at a dinner cohosted by two teammates Monday night that he quit playing football for Allen two years ago but nevertheless wanted to remain in Washington for the remainder of his career, even though he is on the option year of his contract.

"I'm sorry if I don't have too many jokes to tell, but things just haven't been very funny to me lately," said the 28-year-old Theismann, who is in his fourth year here. "I was always brought up to believe if you work real hard for something, you'll get it.

Bowl pins High Times

Granada Bowl defeated High Times twice to win the Livermore Area Recreation Softball C2 men's softball slow-pitch title last weekend.

The champs won the girls contest, 2-1 and turned on their power to take the second, 9-5.

In the first game Granada Bowl scored the winning run in the sixth inning. Jerry Spence led off with a single. After two outs, Saige Krasko singled and Jim Smith followed suit, aided by a fielding error. Spence came in to score easily.

High Times scored its only run in the second. Greg Aheaca, Tim Munson and Ron Nupes each belted a single to score the run.

The winners came back in the third to tie the score. After a ground out Keith Richardson walked and scored on a sacrifice fly by Spence after John Perreira and Rick Tucker each singled.

Jim Smith led the winners with two hits. Granada had seven and the losers collected eight.

A four-run seventh inning determined the outcome in the second contest.

With the scored tied 5-5 Mike Frary led off with a single. After Keith Richardson flied out and Jim Smith hit into a fielder's choice Mark Petak and Frank Richards each singled, scoring Frary. John Pereira followed with a double and Lester Knight smashed a triple to bring home the rest of the runs.

Richardson had a home run in the fifth to give the winners a 5-4 lead but High Times came back with a run in the sixth to tie the score.

High Times had jumped off to a 4-0 lead in the first inning. Dwayne Nunes and Sato Lahti each singled and Jack Locheu reached base on a walk. Then Bob Hill belted a home run.

The winners had 21 hits and the losers clubbed 11.

Vikes roll it up, 44-6

The Tri-Valley Vikings took a 44-6 victory over Mission City in Pop Warner Youth Football Midget Division action last weekend.

The winners had 370 yards total offense. Bob Peterson scored twice, once on a 23-yard pass from Kevin Trudeau, and the other on a five-yard sweep. John Petlansky had two touchdowns and kicked three extra points. Mike Miller scored on an off-tackle play and ran 57 yards for the score.

Trudeau was seven for eight for 129 yards and four touchdowns. Chris Sanchez had an interception and Mark Kirkes recovered a fumble. Randy Johnson blocked a punt.

The Tri-Valley Warriors fell to the Pittsburg Jr. Spartans in Pee Wees competition.

Todd Steohens scored on a 60-yard run but a quick whistle denied TV the score. Andy Brown and Bob Bushey were standouts on offense. Marc Torres and Mike Torres, Mike Xepoleas, Gary Garbers, Scott Fox and Dom Regas were defensive stars.

In another Midget contest the TV Knights fell to the Walnut Creek Marauders 8-0. The Knights lost in the last few minutes as the Marauders scored on a long pass.

Matt Hardt had an outstanding defensive day with six unassisted tackles and seven assists. Mike Reilly intercepted a pass and Ken McNeil had two interceptions. Jay Inglee was good at quarterback and Chris Elbert tallied 11 tackles. He also barely missed a 32-yard field goal.

The Walnut Creek Raiders stopped the Tri-Valley Lancers, 22-6 in Jr. Midget Division competition. Dave Morris scored the lone Lancer TD on a 50-yard sweep. Jon Hunter, Dave Newberry and Todd Kichline ran well behind the blocking of Kan Karras, Greg Holgreen and Rusty Scott.

Chris Lusvardi had an interception. Mike Pate, Paul Sanchez, Staub and Chris Damoulos also played well on defense.

The TV Squires were blanked by the Buccaneers in Pee Wee action. Jim Neach had a long run that was called back on a penalty. Vince Hahlbeck, Ken Martin and Keith Mathia did great on defense. Steve Pate was outstanding at fullback.

Tri-Valley falls, 3-2

Despite outhitting A&W six to three Tri-Valley lost a 3-2 decision in Woodland Winter League baseball action Sunday.

Two errors hurt the losers' cause. A&W only committed one.

Dan Wilkes had a triple, single and RBI. John Bachleda added a triple and Brad Bornhan had a double a RBI. Rick Rosenbach and Rick Menise each had singles for the losers.

The winners scored in the first inning but Tri-Valley came back x with single runs in the third and fifth to take a brief 2-1 advantage. A&W scored twice in the bottom of the fifth to take the final margin.

A hunter's first deer

A beaming Steve Matuska displays forked horns

Steve Matuska of Livermore had the thrill of getting his first deer the other day. A forked horn that dressed out at about 135 pounds is one that any hunter could be proud of. Since Steve is just 14 years old, he could probably give us old - timers some pointers.

"I was walking along the top of a ridge in the Livermore Hills off Mines Road," says Steve, "and the deer saw me at the same time I saw it. That deer took off running; but I figured just about how much to lead him because I've had a lot of practice on the running deer shoots at the Livermore - Pleasanton Rod and Gun Club. He was about 50 yards away in the brush, but I got him."

Steve's day, Roger Matuska, had built a 7x57 Mauser for Steve to use, and he had a 4X Redfield mounted on it. This was Steve and Roger's third year of hunting in the local hills. "I was real happy about it," Steve said, "because Dad never even saw that buck." He reports that he used a 150 grain Sierra bullet. Steve reports seeing several deer, but that was the only buck.

Every hunter should learn to dress his deer. As you know, venison is a real treat. So Roger, Steve and his younger brother Mike all worked to get it dressed, wrapped, and in the freezer. Venison steak is something special!

Don Guisti and his hunting buddy, Al Celoni, decided on the Davis Lake area for their opening day shoot. After a leisurely breakfast, they set out in different directions. Al picked the big rock outcroppings as a good sighting area, while Don hunted in the more brushy spots.

Don was the lucky one — he saw a forked horn and got it with one shot; and it was less than 100 yards from camp. His deer was a blacktail which dressed out about 85-plus pounds.

Did you get your quota of doves so far in this first half of the season? Don't give up, there will be another half later on. The first half ends October 30; the last half starts November 19 and will end December 4. Bag limit is 10 per day and 20 in possession. So, you'll have a second chance at those speedy little gray - blue rascals.

The Frank Stuarts of Livermore met their friend, Jim Freel, at Merced Ranch Gun Club for a weekend of dove shooting. Arriving about 4 p.m., everyone found a shade tree and waited.

It wasn't long until they had a limit. The following two days their success was repeated. Frank says "There were lots of doves; and we were in the flyway, thanks to Jim's scouting activities Friday morning."

Jim reports that he learned something from Frank on this trip. "Frank gets lots of doubles because he shoots at the second bird in the flight, and that doesn't disturb the leader," Jim states. "So the flight continues without all the usual acrobatics those doves go through. I think that's a good theory."

Charlie Litz . . .In the bag

Here is a good bit of information on AB - 1521 (if you have been following it). The Department of Fish and Game (DFG) sends me the following report:

Gov. Edmund G. Brown, JR. has signed AB 1521 directing the state Fish and Game Commission to manage deer on a herd - by - herd basis.

Assemblyman Carmen Perino of Stockton, author of the measure, said it will revamp the management of wild deer in California and represents the first change in deer herd management in the state in a generation.

Commission decisions regarding deer management will be based on studies of individual herds by the DFG. However, 37 of California's 58 counties still retain the power to veto antlerless and either - sex deer hunts. The bill was based on findings of a two - year study, "A Plan for California Deer," which was published in March 1976.

Under the new arrangement, which will go into effect with the 1978 seasons, the first deer tag will cost $3 for residents and $25 for nonresidents. Additional deer tags will cost $5 and $35, respectively.

Currently resident deer hunters may purchase a set of two tags for $3, and the charge for nonresidents is $25. The second tag can be used either to take an additional buck in a two - deer area or to take an antlerless or either -sex deer in a designated herd.

The five state and federal waterfowl areas on which openings are normally deferred because of late crop harvests will open on schedule this year, the DFG has announced.

This means that the state's Gray Lodge Wildlife Area and the Sacramento, Delevan, Colusa and Sutter national wildlife refuges will open Saturday, Oct. 22, along with the balance of the general season area.

The Joice Island unit of Grizzly Island WMA, which customarily opens on the third Saturday of the season, will open on Nov. 5.

The 11 other state and federal areas will open on Oct. 22 except for Kesterson and Perris Reservoir. Kesterson will reamin closed because of the lack of water, and Perris Reservoir, for which the shoot days are Sunday and Wednesday, will open Oct. 23. Hunters were advised to mark their reservation cards accordingly.

While Honey Lake is not under the reservation system, it will also open Oct. 22.

Hobos shoot 'Shots'

A balanced attack gave the Hobos a 5-0 win over the Hotshots in Dublin United Under-16 girls' soccer action last weekend.

Rene Schimada, Rhonda Jones, Kathy Timm, Kerry Boag and Debbie Kachalkin each made a goal for the Hobos.

Joanna Halpin and Sheila Halpin each had an assist.

The 'Quakes took a 5-0 win in Under-14 action. Lisa Sundberg, Janet Houts, Lori Shimada, and Tammie Smith scored for the winners. Smith had two goals. Katie Daugherty and Sundberg had assists.

Dawn Ferris, Sandra Ferreira and Andy Wood played well on defense.

The Fillies edged the Sting Rays 2-1 in Under-12 action. Molly Henderson and Judith Waters had the Fillies' goals. Mary Burke, Laura Sloan and Denise Green also played well. Renee Allgood had the Rays' goal.

Tracy Ignacio had the Leprechauns' goal. Mary Kropf, Robin Lowe and Lynette Kicklind also played well.

In Under-8 action the Wee Shamrocks topped the Crickets 2-0. Evon Plummer had both goals for the winners. Kristy Watts, Kim McKinney, Jodi Sedlacek and Kristine Lindsey played well for the winners.

The Dynamite Dodgers routed the Pixies 6-0. Anne McRitchie had three goals and Brandy Smith two. Kathy Griffiths added one.

Anna Orman, Rachel Ganley and Donna Kropf also stood out.

The Angels fell to the Bullets 5-0 in Under-10 action. Antje Giebeler had two goals and Sandy Castillo three for the Bullets.

Dana Williams and Shelly Pate had assists.

The Thunderbirds topped the Tidal Waves 3-1.

Demian scores hat trick in win

Bill Demian scored three times to give the Warriors a 4-2 victory over the Wolves in Ballistic United Under-16 boys' soccer action last weekend.

Dean Griffith added the other goal. John Demian had an assist and Jeff Sharp had two.

Why a clean car holds its value longer.

Tips on car care from the Shell Answer Man

Shell Answer Man

Sure, a clean car looks better. But appearance isn't the only reason to keep dirt off your car. It might surprise you to learn that a clean car could actually require less body maintenance and be worth more at resale. Read on and learn why.

Dirt is worse than ugly

The dirt on your car can be abrasive. Rubbing a dirty car (like when someone writes "Wash me" on it) can scratch the paint.

Dirt also retains moisture, which can lead to rust. And rust is one of the worst enemies of your car's body.

A clean car helps prevent rust

One way to help protect your car from rust is to keep it as clean and dry as possible. Although some people say today's paints don't need it, a good wax job still helps a lot. Wax often and use chrome polish on the bumpers to keep moisture off the metal.

Clean the nooks and crannies

The worst rust begins where you can't see it: inside nooks and crannies, under the fenders, in back of bumpers and bumper guards, and behind license plates. So when you wash your car, remember it's just as important to clean the parts that don't show as it is to clean the parts that do.

Free Answer Book gives more tips

In Shell's Answer Book #10, The Car Fix-Up Book, you'll find more suggestions on how to keep your car in good shape inside and out. You'll find tips on: how to repair a rust hole; how to make seat covers last longer; how to fix dents and scratches, and rips in vinyl tops; and how to get bumper stickers off. For your free copy, write: Shell Oil Company, P.O. Box 61609, Houston, Texas 77028.

Newgame Othello fans flip

NEW YORK (AP) — Fans of the board game Othello have something new to flip over. Othello — like chess, backgammon and even Monopoly before it — has developed an international tournament.

Champions from around the world will compete in Tokyo on Oct. 29 for the title, said a spokesman for Gabriel Industries Inc., the American distributor of the game.

The game is played by two people who alternate putting disks — white on one side, black on the other — on the 64 squares of a green playing field. The object is to outflank an opponent's disks, flip them and end up with the majority of either black or white disks showing on the board.

Some 25 million Japanese play, according to the Gabriel spokesman. U.S. sales hit 500,000 last year and are expected to top one million in 1977, thanks in part to heavy television advertising.

Among Othello fans are old chess hands and college students at Caltech and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where computers have been programed for competition.

One contender for the U.S. championship, Mark Weinberg, 30, of Washington, says he plays Othello with his 3-yearold daughter.

Weinberg says he is looking forward to national and international competition because local opponents have been hard to find.

"Some of my chess and backgammon friends play, and so does my wife, Joanne," he said. "But there just aren't many players here of my strength. I win about 20 of 21 games, and people don't like to play against that."

So how is he preparing for the international meet?

He's competing via mail with one of the world's best players — Fumio Fujita, Japan's national champion in 1976. The two met last year when Fujita toured the United States. Weinberg was one of few American players able to defeat the Japanese expert.

"He (Fujita) devised a score sheet, which he mails to me with a move marked in," Weinberg explained. "I make a move and send the sheet back."

The week it takes to get the letters back and forth has proved too slow, Weinberg said, "so we're considering starting 10 games at once to step up the pace."

Othello was devised by Goro Hasegawa of Japan in 1971 and named for a Shakespearean character.

Acceptance has been so good that this year Gabriel has introduced a Tournament Othello set, selling for about twice the $10 price of the basic board, and a new handbook by Hasegawa, "How to Win at Othello."

Local champions were selected in August and September in cities around the world, including a dozen in the United States.

Regional playoffs are scheduled in Washington, St. Louis, Houston and San Francisco Oct. 8, and the four winners will compete in New York Oct. 15 for the U.S. championship.

The winner will get a trip for two to Tokyo for the international competition.

Defense Secretary Harold Brown says Pentagon backs canal pact

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Harold Brown said Tuesday the Pentagon "wholeheartedly and fully" supports the new Panama Canal treaty and believes the agreement will improve U.S. national security interests in the Western Hemisphere.

Critics of the treaty have questioned whether U.S. military leaders fully support turning control of the waterway over to the Panamanians after the year 2000.

Testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee with Gen. George S. Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the secretary said: "The Department of Defense has been fully involved in all stages of the drafting and negotiating of the treaties."

Gen. Brown limited his testimony to the brief three-page description of terms of the treaty calling for a continued U.S. military presence in the Canal Zone until 2000.

The general said the Joint Chiefs "support the treaty as being protective of military interests of the United States and as providing an effective basis for defense of the canal."

Testifying that the pact will pose no heightened threat to American access to the waterway, Secretary Brown said the U.S. Navy retains control of the approaches to the canal, regardless of treaty terms.

Sleepwear firm criticized

WASHINGTON (AP) — An environmental group is charging that a manufacturer of children's sleepwear has replaced a government-banned chemical with one that also is unsafe.

The Environmental Defense Fund on Monday identified the substitute chemical as Fyrol FR-2. Officials said the substance poses cancer risks similar to those of Tris, the flameretardant that was banned by the Consumer Product Safety Commission in April.

"It is inexcusable that the commission has permitted the children's sleepwear industry to phase out the use of one hazardous chemical, Tris, only to substitute another, Fyrol FR-2, that may be hazardous."

THE "ULTIMATE" SOLAR POOL HEATER!!!!

1. SOLAR HEATER: 100% coverage of the surface giving you maximum collection.
2. INSULATES: not only does it collect the solar heat but it keeps it in at night.
3. SAFETY: as you can see from the picture, you can walk on it, secures your pool.
4. WATER: again the ultimate answer reduces evaporation almost entirely.
5. ELECTRICITY: you don't have to filter as much so you can run your equipment less.
6. CLEAN: It keeps your pool clean. If the dirt can't get in, you don't have to clean it out.
7. CONVENIENT: no wrassling, just a simple touch of the lever and the motor pulls it back.
8. CHEMICAL: again it conserves using less expensive and dangerous chemicals.

State realtor official urges tax relief action

California homeowners and renters will be deprived of $700 to $800 million dollars of property tax relief during the current tax year unless the Legislature is called into special session promptly according to Jerome Blank, president of the California Association of Realtors.

Blank indicated that he had wired Gov. Brown, Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy and Senate President Pro-Tem James R. Mills urging action to call a special session so that work can be completed on a tax bill by Nov. 1.

"Unless legislation is adopted by the Nov. 1 date," Blank said, "the administrative machinery necessary to deliver property tax relief to homeowners and renters during the present fiscal year cannot be accomplished." He indicated that the state surplus would permit such relief without any new taxes and that defferal of its use for this purpose would lead pressures for possible diversion of these surplus funds to government spending programs.

The Realtor president pledged the continuing participation of his 100,000 member Association with the Legislature and the Governor office in the evolution of a tax package, but stressed his organization's preference for a "simplified measure" that would include basically only four principles:

- No new taxes or new tax authorizations — utilization only of the existing and continuing state surplus.
- A limitation on property tax revenues which may be raised by governmental entities to insure long term continuance of relief.
- Direct reduction of homeowners taxes through state rebates , or subventions to local governments.
- Comparable renter relief.

Blank indicated that tax releif and property tax limitations continue as the "most pressing issue" confronting California.

"As Realtors who are in daily contact with homeowners , homebuyers and renters, we are accutely conscious of the public demand for tax relief and the need for it," Blank concluded.

City sets plans for men's tennis

PLEASANTON — A men's tennis league sponsored by the city's recreation department is slated to begin match play Oct. 24.

While rules will be identical to those governing the "Ladies' Leisure League," the new match schedule will be called the "Men's Workers' League."

Depending on the number of players, each team will have a singles player and several doubles teams. The total number of wins will be the team score.

Each match will consist of one 10-game set instead of a six-game set or a one-hour time limit — whichever comes first.

Scoring will be the 1-2-3-4 system, and not the conventional deuce-ad system.

Players will be matched with others in their own level.

Signups will be accepted through Oct. 15. Matches will be played at Tennis Faire on the Alameda County Fairgrounds.

Balls will be supplied by the recreation department. The cost will be "very minimal," according to staff.

Teams will play once a week in the evening hours, Mondays through Thursdays.

Signups will be accepted at the Tennis Faire building, or call 846 - 3770.

All players must be at least 18-years-old, and cannot sign up as a team.

Energy saving series mapped by VCSD-PG&E

DUBLIN — A series of programs dealing with energy conservation will be presented by Valley Community Services District and Pacific Gas and Electric — Company.

The first program will be Oct. 3 at Shannon Community Center, 11600 Shannon Avenue, Dublin from 7:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

There is no charge.

"The Energy Challenge" will be the theme of the first program. It will deal with understanding problems involved in meeting future energy needs of business, industry and home. This program gives a picture of the energy situation plus many ways to conserve energy in the home.

Each one discusses future energy needs and gives helpful suggestions for conserving energy.

For more information, call the VCSD Recreation Department at 828-7711.

Babysitting unit open house

DUBLIN — The Dublin Babysitting Co-op will hold an Open House Coffee Sept. 30, 10 a.m. to noon at 7848 Tamarack Drive, Dublin.

The purpose of the open house is to acquaint mothers of young and school-aged children with advantages and activities of the babysitting co-op.
